By NADINE TOWNSEND

NEW MADRID— An estimated 1,100 spectators viewed an Easter sunrise pageant and services Sunday on the Mississippi River.

A sunny, balmy Easter morning with the river as a background set the scene as an interdenominatal cast of 70 persons from New Madrid, Kewanee, Matthews and Sikeston re-enacted the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ.

Harold Sloas, general chairman, welcomed the visitors; Matthews high school concert choir with Bob Williamson, director and organist, sang "Hosanna", "Tis Finished", "He Carried the Cross for Me", and "Now Sing We joyfully Unto God"; the Rev. Earl Statler, First United Methodist Church, gave the invocation; and the Rev. Paul Walden, First Prebyterian Church, read the scripture.

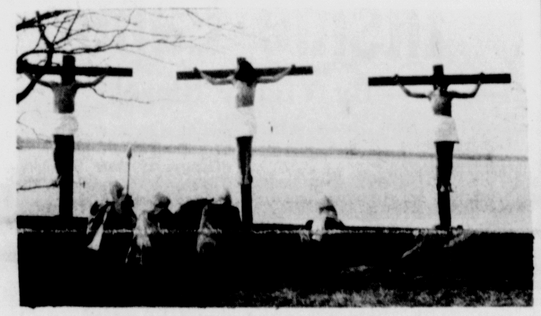

Offertory prayer was given by the Rev. Bob Burnes, Grace Baptist Church, with offertory music by a brass ensemble from Matthews high school. Boy Scout Troop 48 served as ushers.

Four scenes depicting the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ were "The Last Supper"; "In the Garden of Gethsemane"; "The Arrest and Crucifixion"; and "The Resurraction".

Portraying Christ was Carl Meredith of Sikeston; disciples, "John", Bill French; "Peter", Bennett Commer; "James", Jim Edwards; "Judas", Johnnie Hammett; and "Thomas", Tommy Essary.

"Christ on Cross", Jimmy Harris; two thieves, Fred Copeland and Ricky Nowell; "Mary, Mother of Jesus", Lorene Thompson; "Mary, Mother of James", Velma Jean French; "Mary of Magdalene", Carol St. Mary; Centurian, Louis Evans of Sikeston.

SAIGON (AP) — American troop strength in South Vietnam has dropped below 300,000 for the first time in more than 4½ years, the U.S. Command announced today, and a field commander disclosed new tactics to compensate for the further cutback of American forces.

A weekly summary said a total of 296,500 American servicemen were in Vietnam last Thursday, a drop of 5,400 during the week. The total included 223,100 Army, 40,500 Air wforce, 18,000 Marines, 14,800 Navy and 100 Coast Guard.

This was the smallest force since Aug 13, 1966, when a total of 296,000 American troops were in the country. U.S. strength reached a maximum of 543,500 in April 1969.

President Nixon has ordered the American force reduced to 284,000 by the end of this month, and he announced last week that another 100,000 would be withdrawn by Dec. 1.

Lt. Gen. Michael S. Davison, commander of the U.S. 2nd Field Force, said a total of about 7,500 U.s. combat troops will remain after May 1 in his area, Saigon and the 11 surrounding provinces.

These troops, he said, "will form a highly mobile and powerful reaction force capable of moving anywhere, anytime at a moement's notice to counter any enemy threat and supplement our Vietnamese allies.

"We will continue to provide training, logistical and air mobile support to the Vietnamese," he added.

Meanwhile, North Vietnamese troops shot down an American helicopter 90 miles south of Da Nang Sunday, then ambushed an infantry force trying to reach the survivors. The U.S. Command said 11 Americans were killed and eight were wounded.

Enemy losses were not known.

Cable TV Service In April or May

Plans and construction are progressing on schedule for See-More Cable Television and the service should be made available to the public by late April or early May, Travis Garrett, manager, said.

Garrett said that all construction and wiring has been completed and the only thing that remains is to splice additional equipment to the support wires and hook up the homes. Garrett said that about 50 per cent of the wiring in Miner is completed and should be ready within a month.

Initially the cable station will provide stations from Cape Girardeau, Paducah, and Harrisburg, Ill. and Garrett said that channel 8, from Carbondale, Ill., and Channel 21 from Murray, Ky., educational stations also will be available.

Channel 8, Garrett said will provide a movie each night at 10 p.m.

Channel 29, also from Paducah, will be made available in the future. The programming of channel 29 is predominately movies.

Open House At Fire Stations On May 8

Fire Chief Dolph Webb today announced that May 8 will be Fire Service Recognition Day. An open house will be held at the city's two fire stations for the public.

Webb urged all citizens to visit their nearest fire station and "see their apparatus and equipment and the professional type of service they provide today as contrasted with yesteryear."

The recognition day is being held, according to Webb, because the fire department performs many services in addition to fire fighting that the public doesn't realize.

"We also have dwelling inspections, pre-fire planning, inspections of commercial and industrial facilities, hospitals, schools and rest homes," he commented.

1,000 Tires Stolen

ADVANCE--The highway patrol reported the theft of almost 1,000 tires taken from an aluminum Freuhauf 45-foot trailer, Saturday night, while the vehicle was parked at the Phillips 66 Station.

Robert N. Ford, Advance, told officers the trailer had been parked at the station while the cab of the truck was being repaired.

Missing were 830 passenger tires and 117 truck tires.

Five Killed in Three Weekend Highway Crashes

Five were killed in three highway accidents on Southeast Missouri highways over Saturday and Sunday.

Killed in a headon crash Saturday at 8:30 p.m. on highway 61, three miles south of Perryville were Billy Wayne McGhee, 25, Chicago; Miss Nancy Revell, 16, Cape Girardeau, and Jesse Visor, 25, Detroit, who was dead on arrival at a St. Louis hospital. McGhee and Miss Revell were dead on arrival at Perryville Memorial hospital, Perryville.

Masso E. alloway, 22, St. Louis, was killed in an accident Sunday at 2:20 a.m. on highway 60, two miles west of Wyatt.

The fifth fatality was Robert Nichols, 52, St. Louis, killed Sunday at 2:05 a.m. on Interstate 55, one mile north of New Madrid.

In the fatal crash south of Perryville Saturday night both vehicles caught fire and were destroyed and two passengers were seriously injured. The injured were Harold Grayson, 29, New Madrid, driver of one of the cars, and Elias Trentham, 24, Chicago, driver of the other car. Both were taken to Perryville Memorial hospital.

The highway patrol said the Trentham car attempted to pass a car on a hill and crashed headon into the Grayson car.

The fiery crash held up traffic for one hour. Traffic was blocked for more than a half mile in both directions.

In the accident early Sunday morning on I-55, the patrol said a 1964 Mercury, driven by Linda Sue Stillwell, 22, Marion, Ill., was parked on the shoulder with car trouble when it was struck in the rear by a 1968 Ford, driven by Fleming J. Brooks, 63, St. Louis. Brooks lost control of his car, struck railroad overpass piling, and then hit the rear of Mercury.

Robert Nichols, passenger in the Brooks car, was killed, and three passengers in the car were injured. Nichols body was taken to Richards Funeral Home in New Madrid.

The injured were Leroy Johnson, 46, cuts on face; Gary Johnson 13, possible head and leg injury, and Ethel Mae Nichols, 50, all of St. Louis, face cuts and head injury.

Injured in the Stillwell car were Linda Stillwell, head injury and possible broken hip; and Russell Stillwell, 52, St. Louis, cuts on face and head.

The injured were taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital.

In the fatality Sunday morning on highway 60 west of Wyatt, the patrol said that Masso E. Calloway, 22, St. Louis, driver of a 1968 Buick, apparently went to sleep, and drove into the path of a 1970 Peter built tractor, driven by Milton H. Talley, 31, Manhattan, Kan.

Calloway was taken to Sparks Funeral Home in Charleston.

Inquest Today In Gun Death

SCOTT CITY--Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Tom Gilmore said this morning that a coroner's inquest will be held here tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the city hall into the Friday night shooting death of 23-year-old Carolyn Ann Miller of Illmo.

The woman was shot one time in the head. Her husband, Larry Ray Miller, admitted to authorities that he pulled the trigger.

Miller, who claims the shooting was accidental, said in a statement to Sheriff John Dennis Saturday that he arrived home from work Friday and asked his wife if she had cleaned his.22 caliber pistol. Miller said he then took the gun, held it about a foot away from his wife's head and pulled the trigger four times. Miller said when he pulled the trigger the fourth time the gun discharged, a bullet hitting his wife under the right ear.

Mrs. Miller was dead on arrival at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Miller's statement to Sheriff Dennis disclosed that he had consumed "three beers" before going home Friday.

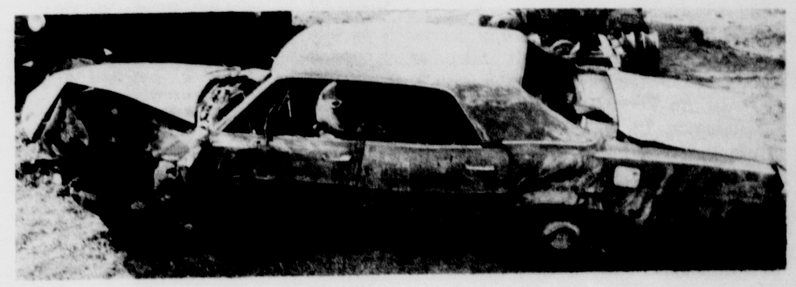

Miller was released Saturday on a charge of investigation of murder but was arrested later on a charge of "exhibiting a dangerous and deadly weapon in a rude and threatening manner" involving another gun incident.

The arrest stemmed from a prior complaint by Michael Gentry of Scott City. Gentry said that Miller "pulled a gun" on him about a week ago. Miller was released on $5,000 bond.

Take $1,500 in Herbicides

KEWANEE— Nine cases of farm herbicides valued at $1,500 were reported stolen from a warehouse of Kewanee Grain Company over the weekend.

Entry was made by forcing open an east door. Deputy Sheriff Walter Ivy and the state patrol investigated.

ROBERT NICHOLS, 52, St. Louis, passenger in this 1968 Ford was fatally injured when the vehicle struck another car on Interstate 55, one mile north of New Madrid.

Editor's Note:
John Roderick of The Associated Press is one of three American newsmen admitted to Communist China to cover the tour of the U.S. table tennis team. It is the first time such permission has been granted to a group of correspondents since the Communists came to power in 1949. Roderick, 56, was an AP correspondent in China in 1945-48 and has served in the Tokyo bureau since 1959.

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

PEKING (AP) — The warm welcome extended by the Chinese to the visiting U.S. table tennis team and three American newsmen admitted to china to cover their tour offers encouraging prospects for wider people-to-people contacts between the Chinese and the Americans.

The table tennis team is the first U.S. group of any kind invited to the Chinese mainland since the People's Republic was proclaimed in 1949.

Our news assignment is to cover the team. But the biggest story of all—China—is all around.

It is too soon to say that all the barriers which have kept Americans out of China and Chinese out of America for so many years are coming down. But a hole has been made in the once impenetrable wall.

Not that official relations have changed or are about to do so. The Vietnam war and U.S. backing of Chiang Kaishek bar the way to rapprochement. But the springlike warmth in U.S.-China contacts at this unofficial level cannot fail to melt some of the ice that has congealed in the long winter of hostility.

This is my first dispatch from China in 22 years. And Americans are welcome in the People's Republic—an event which would have seemed incredible only a few weeks ago.

I crossed the border from Hong Kong at 10:30 on a sunny Easter morning with John Rich and Jack Reynolds of the National Broadcasting Co. and two of their Japanese television crewmen, Hiromasa Yamanaka and Masaaki Shiihara.

With us were four other newsmen, John Saar, an Englishman, and Frank Fischbeck a West German, both of Time and Jose Schlesinger and Bob Whyte from the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

Only Rich and I had ever been to China, and we were here in the years before the Communist takeover.

From the border to Peking, it was all smiles and handshakes.

At Shumchun, across the border, we went through the complex of official buildings at an orderly pace, sipping tea, changing our money and lunching on duck, chicken, pork, squid and abalone washed down by Chinese beer.

We found ourselves in a world of lichee trees, banana groves and rice terraces as we traveled by train to Canton, South China's largest city.

Everywhere Chairman Mao Tse-tung beamed on us from billboards on the side of the track, statues inside the public buildings and from the lapels of countless, blue-jacketed Chinese.

Kwangchow, as the Communists call Canton, was a metropolis of 3 million glimpsed on the way to the airport. It was in holiday mood with thousands strolling the streets.

The cradle of Sun Yat Sen's revolution 50 years ago, it has a memorial to Sun on wide Chungshan Road, an institute for the peasant movement topped by a huge torch painted red and a vast People's Park containing six artificial lakes for boating, two swimming pools and numerous pavilions.

Rows of chien chen trees on Kwangshow's outskirts give the city a French provincial air, a Gallic impression heightened in the countryside by pine trees lining the highways.

Bicycles, an occasional pedicab—a three-wheeled bicycle taxi—and pedestrians filled the streets. There were a handful of cars and some crowded buses. Our car wove through the maze, the driver horn honking imperiously.

At the new airport built four years ago, we newsmen, four Western diplomats and a clutch of Chinese were the only passengers on the four-engine Ilyushin 18 held over from its usual 2 a.m. departure for us.

The last thing we saw when we took off at 5:15 p.m. was Mao smiling up at us from an enormous portrait in front of the airport building.

THE LETTER OF THE LAW

The harsh verdict in the case of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. is certain to be a matter of hot dispute for a long time. Equally noteworthy is the overwhelming public support for Lt. Calley, running at about 100 to 1. A few thoughts on the matter would appear to be in order.

First, it is abundantly clear that the six-man military jury, in reaching its verdict, adhered to a strict, relentless interpretation of "the letter of the law," which was their right and maybe even their duty. From ancient times, mankind has endeavored (without much success) to "civilize" warfare. The famous Dutch legal genius, Hugo Grotius (1583-1645) observed some 350 years ago that the laws of nations had, even at that time, "condemned" the use of assassins to kill an enemy. Yet the Communist aggressors in South Vietnam routinely hurl hand grenades into crowds of civilian shoppers, theatres and restaurants. Thousands of loyal government workers have been openly assassinated, kidnapped and tortured by the Vietcong. Clearly, the "laws of war" are not observed by the enemy. More than that, the "doves" in America make no demands that the perpetrators of these heinous crimes against civilians should be brought to justice.

The sense of outrage felt by the American people, it seems to us, stems directly from this blatant "double standard;" one rule for us, another for the Red invaders. Thus, Senator J. William Fulbright, powerful chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, sanctimoniously suggests that the "war crimes principles developed at Nuremberg" should be used against Presidents Johnson and Nixon, and against Generals Creighton W. Abrams and William C. Westmoreland. But there was no suggestion on his part that the same rules apply to Communist General Vo Giap, or Mao Tse Tung, or the Communist international rulers Kosygin and Brezhnev. As usual, his "rules" are applied selectively — against the United States, but never against the enemy.

Or what about Senator George McGovern, whose public utterances have been considered so favorably by the Communist enemy that they have been used consistently for the brainwashing, the mental torture of our American prisoners held by the Vietcong in North Vietnam? Is not the "letter of the law" to apply to those who give "aid and comfort" to the enemy? Campus "revolutionaries" openly flaunt the law while college administrators close their eyes or look the other way. Rapists and murderers and killers and thieves are routinely freed by permissive courts on the thinnest of legal technicalities. Since when are laws to be used leniently against some, but harshly against others? Little wonder the public outrage against the double standard used in judging the Calley case.

If the "letter of the law" of harsh retribution is to become the order of the day, then let us begin immediately; let the arrests be made now, across the board and without fear or favoritism. And let us start with the supporters and collaborators of our enemy; the Vietcong flag wavers, the bombers, the hate-America punks, and those who by word and deed give aid, support and comfort to the Red Fascists.

"Don't foreget to visit the mobile chest X-ray unit when it comes to Scott County next week," says your Christmas Seal Headquarters.

K. M. Streeter of Painton, reminds all persons 18 years of age and older that they should plan now to have their lungs X-rayed next week. Streeter is presently serving as a representative of Scott County on the TB and RD Advisory Council for District IV.

"It's good health insurance," Streeter announced today, "to stop by the unit and have your lungs checked. It only takes a few minutes and it's free to everyone 18 or over." He added that all evidence of lung pathology detected on the X-ray films is always reported together with the follow-up procedure. Scott County is also represented on the TB and RD Advisory Board by Thelma Buckthorpe, M.D. Administrator of the Scott County Health Department and Carl C. Popp, M.D. of Sikeston.

The schedule for the X-ray service is as follows: on Tuesday, April 20, the unit will be located on the Main street of Chaffee from 12 noon until 3 p.m.

Also on Tuesday, April 20, chest X-ray service will be available at Illmo-Scott City on the parking lot across from the IGA Store in Scott City from 4 p.m. until 7 p.m.

Wednesday, April 21, in Benton in front of the Health Department Building from 9 a.m. until 12 noon and also on Wednesday, April 21, the unit will locate in Sikeston on the Midtowner Village parking lot from 2 p.m. until 7 p.m.

On Thursday, April 22, the survey to check for lung pathology among Scott County residents will come to a close with the unit stationed in Sikeston at Malone Park from 12 noon until 6 p.m.

The Scott County Health Department is working in cooperation with the Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Society of St. Louis and Eastern Missouri in presenting this community chest X-ray survey. Funding for the service is through contributions to the on-going Christmas Seal campaign, whose headquarters are at 911 Locust street, St. Louis, 1, Missouri.

What makes you think it would be "bad" for me to have to make my way in competition with others?

If I work a little harder, or better, or get lucky, will I be able to keep any more of what I earn than the other fellow who didn't work as hard, or as well, or get as lucky?

This luck business is important: In your heart you know that in the game of life there has to be a jackpot, or the game won't be played very hard.

Where did you get the cockeyes idea that the man who earnes twice as much should be taxed four times as much?

Where did you get this idea that government can take care of everybody?

You know you can't get something for nothing; yet you pretend that people in Washington can give you things without first taking them away from you.

Don't try to blame the people in politics: They are simply doing what you want them to do.

Naturally they favor the things you favor because getting elected is their business.

They would change overnight if you would.

And don't get the idea that they respect you for being saps: Only a fool can be sold a ride on his own horse.

And that is exactly what is happening when you vote yourself "security" by giving the government more and more so the government can give you some of it back.

I'd rather risk having to stand on a bread line a few times than spending my life standing on line for government handouts.

OLD WOOD ROAD

An old wood road is a trail into history. Today's speeding traffic on arteries of cement and macadam carries a nation's business and its people. But away from the noise and the smell of acrid fumes, he who will can discover peaceful country roads that meander through small valleys and wind along shoulders of hillsides and low mountains.

Branching from the old dirt roads, one can find the wood roads that wander off through the trees. Along these roads men and boys hauled lumber less than a century ago.

After the pioneering days had passed, farmers found they could ship oak and chestnut, white pine and ash to city markets. It meant a cash product from the farms in a season when regular farm work was not pressing.

Now the old wood roads are dim trails that tell of an era gone. Shrubs and trees have come into the roads that were cleared for the hauling of logs on double-runner sleds. But there are places, especially in the sandy pinelands, where the trails are still distinct.

Old woods roads are not exciting. They don't require the adjectives that are common in a blatant, noisy era. The old roads have appeal to him who likes to get away from the cacophony of man's marketplace and the cages of glass and cement that make canyons of city streets.

In the quiet of the woodland, along an old road one may see a mother partridge leading her brood. The old roads among the trees are going back to nature, but for a long time they will tell a story to the perceptive.

SUPPORT BUILDS FOR A STRAIGHT 2-CENT GAS TAX HIKE

Making predictions about future actions in the Missouri Legislature is always risky. However, at the moment it appears there are enough votes in the House to approve a 2-cent increase in the gasoline tax with no strings attached. If so, the final decision will be made by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes who has threatened to veto such a measure unless it were tied to a constitutional amendment calling for a state-wide road bond program to accelerate construction.

Early in the session the Senate authorized the 2-cent boost by a majority of 22 to 5. Obviously there are enough votes in the upper chamber to override an executive veto. The bill was then referred to the House ways and means committee and there was some speculation that it might die there. The governor has a close working relationship with the House leadership and it was predicted that his opposition to a 2-cent increase would be sufficient to bury the bill in committee. It didn'twork out that way.

Last week ways and means approved the tax hike, without a bond authorization, and sent the measure to the floor for debate. If the House goes along, that decision should not be regarded as a slap at the governor's leadership. His contention is that a tax increase would dissipate subsequent support for a bond program. We do not see it that way. Missouri desperately needs more revenue for highway construction and maintenance this year — not in the distant future.

If the boost is approved now, the higher rate would go into effect this fall and the highway department would be guaranteed more money before the end of 1971. If the hike is tied to the bonds, the election probably would not be held until next year. Then if the public happened to be in a negative mood and turned down the package, Missouri could be held back for years to come.

The logical way to solve this pressing problem would be to approve the tax now and then consider the bonds as a separate issue. The Senate and a House committe have adopted that approach. If the full House and Governor Hearnes can be persuaded to go along, Missouri will have the money to begin meeting its highway obligations this year.

Did you know that one of the oldest crops in the United States is hops? Back in 1646 settlers in what was then New Netherlands planted hops because beer and other malt beverages couldn't be brewed without them.

We don't hear much about hops, perhaps because there are less than 300 producers today, and all are located in only four states — Idaho, Washington, Oregon, and California. But the current crop is expected to be about 40 to 45 million pounds, and over 21 million pounds of it will be exported.

A hop is something like a small pine cone except that it is yellow-green, and the petal - like scales feel loose and papery. There are three principal varieties — Clusters, Fuggles, and english. They grow on wire trellises, 16 to 22 feet high, and under favorable conditions have been known to grow six inches or more in 24 hours.

The early settlers had quite a good thing going for them with the hop crop. By 1808, they were selling more than 21 million pounds, about half of what is produced today. But in the 1920's the New York industry was almost entirely wiped out by a downy mildew. Hoeever, other areas took heed, and learned to contrl the disease so that crops could continue abundant in the Pacific Northwest

Hops are rather tricky to harvest. They're in their prime with maximum brewing value for only 5 to 10 days so that they must be harvested quickly. Then they are picked and cleaned, dried and cured with the moisture content reduced about 75 percent.

After they are dried in kilns heated to 150 degrees, the hops require 12 days to cool. When the curing process is completed, they are baled — about 200 pounds to the bale — and shipped to breweries.

Hops have four important properties which come into use at the brewery. The oil imparts a characteristic aroma. The bittering element and organic acid add to the pleasantly bitter taste, and the resin antiseptic property helps in preservation.

The brewer uses only a small quantity of hops, abouta quarter of a pound to a 31-gallon barrel. At that rate, the 44 million pounds of hops forecast for use in this country this year would make about 176 - million barrels of malt beverage.

ODDMENTS: Folklore tell us, but you don't have to believe it -- men who become prematurely gray are usually good - natured. Very dark hair in a man is a sign of loyalty; a light-haired man is often conceited; and the best husbands are men with fine brown hair ... CONTINUING ATTACKS ON THE MILITARY

A favorite target for attack in the mass media is the U.S. military. Television networks especially, often display anti-military propaganda in so-called "specials" and in their nightly news reports.

Any excess by our servicemen in Vietnam is widely publicized, while Viet Cong atrocities are studiously ignored. Defense spending is constantly attacked as needless and inflationary. Most recently the Pentagon was denounced on a network "documentary." Even patriotic citizens might begin to worry about the military if they are exposed to these attacks long enough.

No one claims that everyone connected with the military is perfect or makes no mistakes. No government department could make such a claim. But of all the departments in government, the one most important to our survival and most needing the support of our citizens is the military. Of all the expenditures by our government, those for national defense are the most justified.

The purpose of our armed forces is to protect our citizens and our country and to defend those in other countries who are our allies and victims of aggression by our enemies. Many other functions which our government has taken upon itself could be performed just as well or better by individuals or private organizations. But obviously only the national government can provide for national defense. Those who seek to undermine it weaken the morale of our sons in the service and undermine our entire nation.

While constructive criticism of the military, as of any other government department, should never be stifled, destructive and unfair criticism can only do harm. We should all give more support to those who defend our lives, our freedoms and our Republic USA. HLH

Why No House Bugs? Congressional Offices Reported Infiltrated

WASHINGTON -- In the beginning let there be light. If the enraged Congressman Hale Boggs, who so passionately now flays FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, is devoutly anti-wiretap, he is a recent convert to the anti - bugging club. For many years now he has been a strong supporter of the tap, the bug and special surveillance .

It was he who introduced into the 1941 Congress a bill banning Communists, Fascists and German - American Bundists from trade unions.

It was this Louisiana congressman who voted enthusiastically for legalization of wiretapping by the FBI in sabotage and cases involving the national security. And again in 1954 he voted for legal wiretapping on court order.

The 57 -year-old representative did not then make any distinction -- nor has he until recently -- between a civilian and a congressman. Point then is, what makes members of the Congress immune from the wiretap?

There have been members of the Congress who had more than the usual number of glass -hoisting, nightclub relationships with the lineage of Al Capone. There have be me who were intricately interwoven with the Communist Party. There may be some who are in the draft card burning milieu. And here I differentiate those who are anti-war, or latter-day doves. I'm talking rather of the Communist Party's apparatus.

There have been those who were off -the -wall and constantly freaking out on society.

Invasion of the public's privacy is not the issue here. The invasion of congressmen's privacy is. Would it have been wrong to tap the office wire of former House Speaker John McCormack, which was used as a sort of bucket shop operation by a couple of fellows?

Incidentally, this sort of thing goes on a great deal of the time -- and has for a long time too. Back to the office of the late Vice President Henry Wallace.

And what of the U.S. senator whose aide has been accused of attempting to kill an indictment of a Wall Street theivery ring which included the extortionist and now- imprisoned Johnny (Dio) Dioguardi?

And what of New Jersey Congressman Cornelius Gallagher? Does he or does he not know Joe (Joe Bayonne) Zicarelli well, who according to the federal records was a captain in the Joe Bonanno operation? Joe Bayonne has gotten himself into several raps. Mr. Gallagher is an important member of Congress, third ranking member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Congressman Gallagher was one of 10 possible running mates considered by Lyndon Johnson in 1964. And when the president asked Mr. Hoover to come over and discuss Rep. Gallagher, the FBI chief went and voiced his disapproval. But there was no FBI tap in his dossier.

I do believe Mr. Hoover and Attorney General Mitchell when they say no congressman ever has been wired for sound, or bugged or put under surveillance.

Congressman Gallagher's alleged friendship with Zicarelli did not even tempt the FBI. It's just not done. John Edgar Hoover is too astute, and has too many enemies this open season, to commit political suicide by tapping, bugging or tailing a congressman.

Mr. Boggs used some semantic acid when he charged the FBI with using Gestapo tactics. Well, that's oratory. But why should tapping of the Congress be any more verboten than the tapping of others who might be involved in gambling, protection, or threatening the security of this nation?

There are 535 members in both houses. They've mostly come up through the precinct jungle. They have been wooed in many fashions -- some damned carnal -- by international operatives.

Yet in no one year, until the recent gambling jurisdiction given the Justice Dept. and the FBI, have there been more than 100 taps. During the late Robert Kennedy's term as Attorney General, he authorized between 80 and 90 taps annually.

It's all legal under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 and the new Organized Crime Control Act of 1970.

Yet J. Edgar Hoover on March 5, 1970 testified that: "Our investigative coverage is also enhanced through the limited and closely controlled use of telephone and microphone installations. Currently, we are operating 36 telephone surveillances and two microphone installations in bureau cases in the security field. All were authorized in advance and in writing by the Attorney General.

"We are also operating four telephone surveillances and one microphone surveillance in bureau cases in the organized crime field. These were installed under a court order obtained under provisions of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968."

In the ten months following Mr. Hoover's testimony there were about another 100 taps authorized -- because of the new gambling jurisdiction. But these have resulted in hundreds of arrests and many convictions of organized crime leaders.

Obviously modern crime needs modern counteraction. And what makes congressmen supermen? Why would the tapping of a House or Senate member "liquidate the Bill of Rights" as Mr. Boggs laments?

There is no second- class citizenship -- not even for those on the bottom of "The Hill."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — New evidence has come to light that the FBI is trafficking in private information about public figures.

A derogatory report on House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs, including the allegation that he drinks heavily, has been traced to FBI sources.

This was the inspiration, it has been suggested, for Deputy Attorney General Richard Kleindienst's crack on television that Boggs must have been either "sick or ... not in possession of his faculties" when he accused the FBI of tapping congressional phones.

Kleindienst told us he had heard the rumors about Boggs's drinking but not from the FBI. The only FBI report he had seen on Boggs, Kleindienst said, concerned the Congressman's alleged role in helping Baltimore contractor Victor Frenkil get the contract for constructing a House garage.

The Deputy Attorney General said he had reviewed this report about 18 months ago and had joined in the decision that "there was no evidence to warrant prosecution."

The FBI rundown on Boggs, according to a competent source who has seen it and is in a position to know its origin, is written on plain paper without any FBI identifying marks. In the past, we have seen similar anonymous reports that we knew came out of the FBI.

TITILLATING TIDBITS

It has been the FBI's practice to collect titillating tidbits about prominent people, which turn up in the course of other investigations.

The FBI learned from its wiretaps at the Soviet Embassy, for instance, that ex-Attorney General Ramsey Clark had telephoned Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin last December about possibly going to Russia to observe the trial of 12 Russian Jews who allegedly had plotted to hijack a plane to fly them to Israel.

J. Edgar Hoover immediately sent a secret message about Clark's plans, quoting a "highly reliable source," on the FBI teletype to the White House, Pentagon, State Department and Central Intelligence Agency.

Perhaps the most notorious FBI report that has come to our attention was a memo to ex-President Lyndon Johnson on the sex life of the late Dr. Martin Luther King. A White House aide showed us the FBI memo, dated Feb. 20, 1968.

It quoted a "confidential informant" who said Dr. King had been having an "illicit affair'with the "wife of a prominent Negro dentist in Los Angeles."

Continued the memo: "The source related an incident which occurred some time ago in a New York City hotel, where King was intoxicated at a small gathering. King threatened to leap from the 13th floor window of the hotel if this woman would not say she loved him."

The FBI, of course, has no business investigating King's sex life, Boggs's drinking habits, Clark's travel plans or the private lives of any other public figures.

PEANUT BUTTER CAPER

Hidden in secret Pentagon files, among incidents the Army has hushed up, is the story of the peanut butter caper.

It happened a year ago when Maj. Gen. Herron Maples was in charge of peanut butter matters for the Army in Europe.

He was determined to keep his favorite brand, Circus peanut butter, on commissary shelves. But he was overruled by a cost - conscious Pentagon which discovered Piknik peanut butter was cheaper.

(The cost overrun for he Circus brand, it was carefully calculated, came to 21 cents extra for a three -pound jar.)

Maples registered his compliance in a formal message that he sent to the Pentagon over the "front channel." But he put another secret message on the "back channel," which is reserved for general officers.

Only the most sensitive secrets are marked for the "eyes only" of Pentagon insiders. This was how Maples was hand - carried from the Pentagon communications center to the Army Support Services.

"I will withdraw agreement," the two-star peanut butter epicurean advised. Thus he defied Pentagon directive and continued to stock the more expensive peanut spread, keeping the record a deep military secret.

His "Eyes only" message, dated March 12, 1970, offered this addendum: "If after we have tried (other) peanut butter for a period and we see an impact on our sales on peanut butter Circus, we will then reconsider."

At 21 cents more per giant jar, Maples's manipulation has cost peanut butter eaters in the European Command thousands of dollars. The word reaching the Pentagon was that he acted upon the urging of food brokers handling the Circus brand.

Footnote: Maples also informed the Pentagon of his wife's feeling that "Formula 409" cleanser in the half-gallon size should be featured on commissary shelves. With disregard again for the Pentagon's expensive studies, he declared arbitrarily that "great saving to our customers" would result from stocking "Formula 409." We tried unsuccessfully to reach Maples by trans-Pacific phone in Vietnam where he is now handling home - cleanser and peanut - butter problems for Gen. Creighton Abrams.

Hal Boyle

It seems to me that spring is more oratorical than usual this year and that the present Easter season has had more than ordinary impact on people.

Perhaps this is because for some time now the American spirit has been flying at half staff. We have been sick in soul, ashamed at heart, confused of mind, distrustful of our national purposes.

We have bragged for a number of years now about our generosity as a people and our high moral goals, but today those brags sound tinny to our own ears. It is not necessary to spell out the reasons why we are not happy with ourselves. They are apparent to us all.

That is why, it seems to me, there was more warmth than usual this year in the traditional greeting, "Happy Easter!" In our mutual distress we have felt deeply the need of one another and the consolation provided by Jesus Christ's example that nobility of both dream and conduct are possible to man, no matter the price. We can be more than hypocritical.

Nature is ever at hand, too, to help us cure ourselves. Spring right now holds out the promise of regeneration, as did Jesus.

There has never been a lovelier spring. Each opening green bud is a pulpit preaching the veracity of renewal, that sadness will pass and gladness come again. Now is the time for us all to take a walk in the nearest woodland and share the enchantment of its vast rebirth and the faith and optimism implicit in birdsong.

There is hope for us yet. Much, much hope. If we can believe in the message given by growing trees, we can believe in ourselves as well. We still have another chance.

Dexter and Howardville In MCB Competition

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri Community Betterment director, Everett M. Lee, has announced that Dexter and Howardville have entered the 1971 Missouri Community Betterment awards competition.

"The towns will be judged on community involvement and the degree of accomplishment made in one year on community improvement projects selected for competition," he said.

Communities entered in the awards program will be competing with towns of comparable size. A total of $10,500 in cash donated by businesses, utilities and professional groups will be awarded to towns under 10,000 in population. In the population group of over 10,000, the 1971 winners will receive achievement plaques.

The 1971 winners will be announced at the eighth annual Missouri Community Betterment conference held in October in Jefferson City.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I resent your consistent portrayal of homosexuals as an immoral, antisocial, obnoxious segment of society. I especially take exception to the letter from the Arizona homosexual. Why it is you would not allow the words "kike" or "nigger" to get into print, yet you let the word "queer" appear in your column, even though it is offensive to 20 million Americans. (Kinsey's statistics). Furthermore, your conclusion that the straight student was approached often because he was "prettier than most guys" is a stereotypical fallacy -- pure fiction.

Why do you treat 10 per cent of your readership as though there is no good side to their life style? Your low opinion of homosexuals is apparent from the selection of the letters you choose to print. Get with it or give up. --- Member Of The National Gay Liberation Alliance

Dear Gay Lib: The letter below might be of interest to you since it deals with the same subject.

Dear Ann Landers: This is one of the sincerest thank -yous you'll ever receive. I've always believed that only a homosexual could understand what it is like to be persecuted by ignorant people, but you, Ann Landers, have displayed unusual understanding. As a 23-year -old homosexual, I can tell you it's a rough life to be rejected and humiliated, but for boys 15 and 16 it's pure hell.

I appreciate your compassion. You are one person who prints the truth about homosexuality. Please keep reminding your readers that the trouble with the world is not that some people make love differently but that they don't love at all. --- Love to you, Ann Landers. --- Evanston

Dear Evanston: Everyone likes to be appreciated. Thanks for writing.

An now, a word to Gay Lib who says I am misinformed. Sorry, you're wrong. It is no stereotypical fallacy that pretty males attract homosexuals. "Pink Tea Queens" (as they are called) are well aware of their girlish good looks and they use it to an advantage. This information comes to me from the homosexuals themselves and not from third-party researchers.

Dear Ann Landers: I am nearly 17 and have had this problem for over a year. Whenever I am asked for a date I get real excited about it and I look forward to having a good time. So what happens? About ten minutes before the guy shows up I get a stomach ache. By the time he arrives I feel rotten. I have these pains the whole evening and it's all I can do to force a smile and pretend I'm having fun. It kills me to see other girls laughing and enjoying themselves while I'm in pain --- wishing I was dead.

Please tell me how to get over this ridiculous thing. I am --- Sick of Gettin Sick

Dear S.O.G.S.: Go to a doctor and learn whether or not an organic problem is causing the pain. Chances are good that the trouble is not in your stomach but higher up ---like in your head.

People who are uptight, fearful and unsure of themselves often develop physical symptoms. Stomach aches and headaches are the most common. Hopefully the doctor will give you some medication or suggest counseling. Maybe both.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze And You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Housewife Spends Vacations on Safaris

Her safaris, booked through a safari company in Nairobi, have taken her to Kenya in 1967 and Tanzania last August. A third trip is being planned for the summer of 1972.

"We love the outdoors and wanted to get to Africa before the wildlife is gone," she said.

"We would wait on the hilltops in the darkness of the morning and watch as the sun broke over the vast escarpment of northern Kenya to ... reveal the haunting spectacle of nature," Mrs. Baron wrote in a catalogue accompanying a display of her color photographs at the Trans World Airlines Flight Center at Kennedy International Airport in New York.

The three traveled to the maountainous regions of northern Kenya, and to southern Kenya.

Dr. and Mrs. Baron were joined on the second trip by their four children, then aged 12 to 19 years, and two professional hunters, Sven Cedergren and Robin Boyd.

The second trip took them to southern Tanzania, near Zambia and the Congo, and then to the Serengeti region in northern Tanzania.

Judith Susan Taylor

Taylor-Tidwell

James T. Taylor of 924 Tanner, announces the engagement of his daughter, Judith Susan Taylor, to Dennis Wayne Tidwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Tidwell, 615 Dorothy.

Miss Taylor is a senior at Sikeston high school. She is employed part time by the law firm of Blanton, Blanton, Rice and Sickal.

Tidwell is a 1969 graduate of Sikeston high school and is employed as sporting good and automotive manager at Wal Mart.

Wedding plans are being made for Aug. 7 in the First Baptist church.

Bouillon a Boon

Beef bouillon from can or cube is a boon for the bride as well as the experienced cook. It can be used to advantage in the preparation of gravies, oriental dishes, beef stroganoff or meat balls. Bouillon also makes an excellent braising liquid for pot-roasts.

Luncheon at Big Ridge Head Start

Serving as hostesses were Glenda Kelley, social service aide; Delores Smith, parent aide; Darlene Gilliam, nurse; and Jean Geske, head teacher.

The committee is composed of parents whose children are enrolled in the center and representatives of the neighborhood community groups.

Parent members are Bob Wrather, president; Bernice Brooks, vice president; Mary Curtner, secretary; Sue Bogle, treasurer; Janet Hinson, area representative; Willie Glispie, area representative. Community members are Louise Croom, Suzie Mae Hunt, Barbara Nimmo, and Willa Alsup.

Rub chicken pieces with butter or margarine; crumble tarragon over. Place in shallow pan without rack and bake at 375 degrees for 1 hour, basting twice. Add wedges of juicy fresh nectarines to drippings in pan to bake for the last ten minutes. Just before serving, stir some dairy sour cream into pan drippings and serve as sauce for chicken.

More Men Than Women Bought Easter Hats

SAN DIEGO, Calif (AP) — The Easter bonnet boom in this city is at the counters of men's shops and the colors are vivid, say the fashion stores.

A downtown men's shop said it sold $1,000 worth of hats in less than an hour Friday. Salesgirl Joe Howze said avocado and suntan straw hats of sheared velvet and bowlers in sky blue, cherry blossom pink and king's gold were the most popular.

Robert Anderson Jr. said he purchased a pink plantation straw hat to go "with my metallic bronze jump suit and white tassle loafers."

One sales clerk said "the gals still come in, but mostly to help their husbands."

A store attributed the drop in sales of ladies' hats to wigs and fancy hair styles.

Going Gourmet

Consumer taste levels are rising. Household help is becoming more scarce. As a result, elegant cooking and serving products are demanded items.

Serving and buffet products, along with electrical appliances, account for 40% of the sales volume in housewares.

Gourmet shops are becoming more important daily, many of them with libraries so women can browze through cookbooks as they contemplate their adventure into gourmet cookery.

SAVE MY FACE

AND SAVE MONEY. This week we are featuring "after Easter" specials — and if your bring my "face" with you, you will get an additional 10% off on sale or regular merchandise — and that, my friends, is called "saving face." The sale lasts only this week, so take advantage of the bargains.

In the springtime a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love. And a young girl thinks of the spring prom and a new formal. This year the look of formals have completely changed, and we have just received a new shipment of the "new looks" for this year's affair.

Also in the springtime, no matter what your age, you get that disease called "spring fever."

At ages 6 to 16 — you get spring fever and wonder if you can be excused from school because of it ....

At age 20 — you get spring fever and find you have the fire to conquer the world and will attempt it ....

At age 30 — you get spring fever and your dream is to build a better place for your family, and you strive toward that aim ....

At age 40 — you get spring fever and you are at that dangerous age of wondering whether the old saying "life begins at 40" is really true (take it from me, it can be true) ....

At age 50 — you get spring fever and realize what they meant by "life begins at 40". You are enjoying the reaps of your labor and have discovered that life can be like springtime ....

So when you get "spring fever" this year, take advantage of the feeling and do something with it!

Red Birds Split Pair, Royals Blast Oakland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals split an Easter Sunday doubleheader at home with the San Francisco Giants, winning the opener 4-2 and dropping the nightcap, 7-2, while the Kaneas City Royals were lambasting the Athletics in Oakland, 10-5.

Willie Mays sat out the first game but tripled and doubled for two runs to lead the Giants over the Cards in the second. Successive homers by Joe Torre and Jose Cardenal wiped out Juan Marichal's bid for a shutout in the sixth.

Bob Gibson pitched a six-hitter in the opener for his 191st career victory, shutting out the Giants until the eighth when pinch-hitter Goerge Foster and Bobby Bonds homered back-toback.

Ted Sizemore's two-run fifth against loser Rich Robertson.

Gibson, squaring his season record at 1-1, struck out three, walked none and worked out of the only other Giants threat by retiring Alan Gallagher on a ground ball with two on in the fourth.

Four straight San Francisco hits in the four-run third chased loser Reggie Cleveland of the Cards in the second game.

Little Freddie Patek rached base four times on two singles and two walks, stole a base and scored three times to lead the 15-hit Royals attack against four Oakland pitchers.

Kansas City rapped A's starter Jim Hunter for seven hits and five runs in less than two innings. Paul Schaal doubled and singled, Cookie Rojas had two singles and Bob Oliver homered.

The Royals scored four runs in the first on singles by Patek, Joe Keough, Lou Piniella, Ed Kirkpatrick and Rojas and a double by Schaal, with an error by center fielder Rick Monday.

The Athletics, trailing 8-1 until the fifth, pulled up to 8-5 in the sixth, but Bobby Knoop's pinch double drove in two more Royals runs in the seventh.

Al Fitzmorris was the winner on a four-hitter, including a pair of homers, a two-run blast by Dick Green in the fifth and a single in the second by Monday.

The Houston Astros pay the Cards a visit in St. Louis tonight, with Wade Blasingame, 1-0, going against Steve Carlton, 1,0.

Brewers Atop American League West, White Sox And Senators Blanked

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Like the proverbial Hollywood starlet, Marty Pattin found the road to success in a drugstore and, as a result water is a popular drink in at least one Milwaukee household.

Pattin, a 5-foot-11, 180-pound right-hander, notched his second victory of the young season Sunday with a three-hit 3-0 blanking of the California Angels. That put the expansion Milwaukee Brewers atop the American League West with a 3-1 record.

After a 7-12 record and 5.60 earned run average with Milwaukee's Seattle predecessors in 1969, Pattin posted a 14-12 mark last season and lowered his ERA to 3.40. He credited a diet which requires at least eight glasses of water a day and helped him shed 15 pounds.

"My wife picked up this diet book at a drugstore," Pattin explained. "I guess they call it a water diet. You eat a lot of proteins and drink a lot of water. There is something about the water acting on the proteins to help keep the weight down. Anyhow, it seems to be working."

Elsewhere in the AL, Minnesota whipped the Chicago White Sox 6-0, Kansas City outslugged Oakland 10-5, Baltimore dropped its opener to Detroit 5-4 in 11 innings but won the nightcap 9-3, Cleveland trounced Boston 7-2 and the New York Yankees split with Washington, winning 1-0 and losing 4-3.

In the National League, it was the New York Mets 1, Cincinnati 0 in 11 innings: Atlanta 3, Pittsburgh 1; Houston 7, Chicago Cubs 4; San Diego 9, Los Angeles 7; Philadelphia 11, Montreal 4 and St. Louis 4, San Francisco 2 in the first game of a twin bill and San Francicco 7, St. Louis 2, in the nightcap.

Pattin got the only run he needed against California in the first inning when Dave May doubled off Tom Murphy and scored on a single by Andy Kosco. Singles by Ellie Rodriguez and Ted Kubiak wrapped around a wild pitch accounted for a run in the second and Bernie Smith homered in the eighth.

Jim Kaat, a good hitting pitcher, scattered 11 hits as the Twins blanked the White Sox. He also collected a single and double, drive in two runs and scored one while boosting his lifetime mark against Chicago to 26-9.

Kaat put the Twins ahead in the third when Jay Johnstone lost his fly ball in the sun and it fell for a double. Kaat scored on Rod Carew's single and Carew came around when Tony Oliva's wind-blown fly ball fell in left field for a single.

Kansas City erupted for four runs in the first inning and went on to pound four Oakland pitchers for 15 hits. Loser Jim Hunter was tagged for first-inning singles by Freddie Patek, Joe Keough, Lou Piniella, Ed Kirkpatrick and Cookie Rojas and Paul Schaal's double.

Bob Oliver later homered and Bobby Knoop pinch hit a tworun double for the Royals while Rick Monday and Dick Green homered for the A's.

Just when was it beginning to look as though the Orioles might never lose a game, Bill Freehan's 11th-inning home run lowered the boom in the opener despite a homer, double and two singles by Brooks Robinson. The Birds then broke loose for five runs in the first two innings of the nightcap and coasted behind Dave McNally's seven-hit pitching.

Pitcher Alan Foster touched off a five-run rally with an eighth-inning double and Cleveland sent the Red Sox to their third straight defeat. Larry Brown was then hit by a pitch, Craig Nettles sacrificed and Vada Pinson's single scored Foster.

Bullets Wallop Knicks, 114-88

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was almost unbelievable what the Baltimore Bullets did to the New York Knicks.

Given up for dead by almost everyone after losing the first two games to the defending champion Knicks in their National Basketball Association playoff series, the injury-ridden Bullets executed an about-face Sunday and walloped the Knicks 114-88.

It was the worst drubbing the Knicks have absorbed since their 22-point licking, 135-113, by Los Angeles in last year's playoffs.

"If we play up to our potential with the players we have left we can still win," declared Baltimore coach Gene Shue after the Bullets had cut the Knicks' lead to 2-1 in the best-of-7 Eastern Conference final.

The Bullets, with stars Gus Johnson and Kevin Loughery still sidelined with leg injuries, can now even the series by winning the fourth game at Baltimore Wednesday night.

Form stood up in the NBA Western Conference final as the Milwaukee Bucks again trampled Los Angeles 91-73 for a 2-0 lead in their best-of-7 series.

The third game will be played Wednesday in Los Angeles.

The American Basketball Association playoffs resume tonight with Kentucky vs. the Floridians at Miami and Utah vs. Indiana at Indianapolis.

Led by Earl Monroe's 31 points and Wes Unseld's 26 rebounds, the Bullets virtually blew the Knicks off the court in the second half at Baltimore.

Kentucky Derby Field Still Cloudy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With the 97th Kentucky Derby less than three weeks away, the prospects for its starting field still are fogged, but a pair of races in the coming week could clear the air a little.

The astern contingent of hopefuls for the May 1 Derby will contest the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct on Saturday while some of those already in Kentucky go in a prominent overnight Derby prep at Keeneland a day earlier.

Liley to be the favorite in the Wood is Calumet Farm's Eastern Fleet, winner of the Florida Derby in a clocking just twofifths of a second off the 14year-old track record.

Greentree Stable's Dynastic, and Fritz and Sechrest's Vegas Vic, newly arrived from the West Coast, will go in the Forerunner on Friday at Kenneland.

Either race could produce a Derby favorite, but so far nobody seems to want that role.

Limit To Reason, probably the second best colt of last season behind the now-injured Hoist The Flag, had his chance Saturday at Keeneland, when he faced what was considered a so-so field in a seven furlong test—and lost.

Toolin Around, meantime, brought thoughts of roses, juleps and the twin spires of Churchill Downs to his trainer, Dave Zakoor, who said, "I can still feel my heart beating. I've never had a horse like this before.

Zakoor, like some 26 other trainers of Derby eligibles, said he will have to watch his colt's development in the next 20 days to be sure, but if all goes well, he'll be in the Derby.

The upset for Brookmeade Stable's Limit To Reason was just a part of Saturday's turnabout in racing luck.

The Pruner, favored in the $106,100 Pan American Turf Handicap at Gulfstream Park, was back in the pack when Colonial Farms' Chompion set a track record of 2:25 3-5 for the 1½ miles.

Coody Masters Champ

Texas' handsome Charles Coody won the 1971 Masters Sunday and healed personal scars from his Augusta National collapse of 1969. He also destroyed Jack Nicklaus' dream of sweeping the Big Four championships this year.

"I was jittery from the first tee," admitted the man from Abilene. "Beating a great golfer like Nicklaus in the stretch is a big order for an average fellow like me."

Coody not only outgunned the sputtering Nicklaus, but withstood a stirring charge by 23year-old Californian John Miller, the nerveless kid who was six under par after 14 holes Sunday and leading the Masters by two shots.

Charlie rolled in birdies on the 15th and 16th holes and made clutch pars on the final two to finish with a two-underpar 70 and a 279 total. Miller finally melted and settled for a 68 and 281, the same as Nicklaus mustered with a closing 72.

"My goofup in 1969 ate up my inside for two years," Coody said. "That's all over now."

Robinson, Wills Tread Softly

Black Managerial Hopefuls Chary

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

MIAMI—(NEA)—Frank Robinson and Maury Wills, both prime prospects to become the first black major league manager, admit that they are now playing the white Establishment's game in pursuit of their goal.

Both said they are trying to avoid controversy and are bending over backwards to impress "them" (big league owners) with contormity to written and unwritten codes of conduct.

"I feel now," said Wills, Los Angeles Dodger shortstop, "that I'm being watched. So I try to set an example for my teammates. Usually it's in the little things. On the field, I try to help our younger players in where they should stand for certain batters. Off the field, well, I don't get involved with the pranks and jokes in the clubhouse, for example. 'No, no,' I'll say, 'I don't want any part of that.'"

Robinson, Baltimore outfielder, adds, "Say I pop a ball up in the infield. I run it out hard to first. I don't want to just trot. If someone's watching, I don't want him to say, 'If Robinson doesn't run it out, then how can he expect his players to?'

"And I don't sulk. I try to set an example, too. If I strike out to end an inning, for example, I don't go out to the outfield with my head down. And when I'm in right field, Paul Blair in center and Davey Johnson at second often check with me to see where they should play a batter."

Though neither the Dodgers or Orioles have team captains, Robinson and Wills are considered the "unofficial captains."

Both wear their hair modishly long, but not in "nine-mile wide" Afros, as Robinson phrased it. Neither sports long sideburns or facial hair, anathema to the traditional conservative-minded owner.

Both try to toe the line. Curfew for them means a strict deadline, though once both were rather cavalier about it. A few years ago Wills, after a game in St. Louis in September in the heat of the pennant race, went to Gaslight Square and played his banjo in a night club into the small hours. He missed curfew by about an hour. It did not please manager Walt Alston. But Wills played outstanding ball and the Dodgers swept the series and went on to win the pennant.

Later, when Wills was with Pittsburgh, manager Harry Walker fined him $300 one night for missing curfew by half-an-hour, then $400 the next night for again coming in 30 minutes late.

Wills doubts he would chance that notoriety today. Robinson said that he is especially careful just how and where he spends his off-hours. And, of course, he is no longer the "callow" youth whose arrest for carrying a concealed weapon caused him a dreary press when he played for Cincinnati years ago.

They step gingerly so as not to tread on the toes of the Establishment, which has in the past often played a game of musical chairs by hiring managers who have shuffled from one team to another.

"I don't want to sound bitter," said Wills, carefully. "But I do think it is time for some new faces and new ideas." He added, "I'm not arrogant, but I always felt I could do an outstanding job as manager."

Some whites, in this age of Muhammad Ali, are often repelled by a black man's "arrogance." Quiet confidence, though, is to be respected, in their judgment.

Robinson does not believe that this new self-conciousness has hurt his play. Wills, though, thinks it has to have some effect.

"One little thing was my way of gearing myself up for a game," he said. "I never wanted to talk to reporters an hour before a game. I would get very detached from the outside world." Now, though, he tries to cooperate with the press at all times.

This attitude is reminiscent to a degree of Jackie Robinson's deportment when he was the first and only black man playing in the big leagues. He rocked no boats until he and other blacks had become established players.

Robinson and Wills have both managed winter league teams successfully. Robinson, for the past three off-seasons, has managed Santurce in the Puerto Rican League to one pennant and one championship. Wills, in his first attempt, managed Hermosillo to a Mexican League pennant.

Neither is ready to retire as an active player. Robinson, 35, batted .306 for the World Champion Orioles. Wills, 38, hit .270 and stole 28 bases, despite torn ligaments in his left foot suffered early in the season. He believes he can steal 50 bases "easily" in 1971.

Both said they would like to get a chance to manage soon, though they know it would probably not be with their present teams. Earl Weaver of Baltimore and Alston seem firmly planted in those jobs.

Missouri Heads Big Eight Standings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri, unbeaten in three conference games, was on top the Big Eight heap after the first full week of baseball.

The Tigers whipped winless Kansas 7-5 Saturday and swept the weekend series. Tommy Nunn's run-scoring single in the eighth snapped a 5-5 tie for the victory.

Colorado beat Nebraska 4-1 Saturday to take that weekend series two games to one and post a 5-1 conference record behind Missouri. Home runs by Tim Evans and Doug Clark counted for the Buffs.

Oklahoma dropped a 4-2 decision to Oklahoma State Saturday, but carried the three-game weekend set by sweeping Friday's doubleheader from the Cowboys. The Sooners were third in Big Eight standings at 2-1. Oklahoma State was fourth at 5-4.

Kansas State followed in fifth place at 4-5 after picking up a 7-5 decision Saturday from Iowa State Cyclones hurler Doug Parsons hit K-State's Jay Parker with a pitched ball to walk in the winning run with the bases loaded in the eighth. The two teams split a Friday doubleheader.

The Cyclones and the Huskers are tied at sixth with identical 1-2 records, and the Jayhawks have yet to win a Big Eight game in six starts.

1971 State Manual To Honor Women

JEFFERSON CITY — James C. Kirkpatrick, the jolly Irishman who turned Missouri's Blue Book to — what else? — green, plans to give a boost to women's lib in the forthcoming edition.

A potted shamrock rested on the corner of the secretary of state's desk, along with other Irish memorabilia about his office, as he discussed the state's election laws and the Official Missouri State Manual, now the Green Book.

He was quick to note that his visitor wore a green shirt as he pointed to a smidgen of green in his own tie, a color that has earned him the nickname "The Jolly Green Giant" from some of his Jefferson City friends.

Ever gallant with the ladies, the secretary recalled that this is Missouri's sesquicentennial year and he thinks it is about time some attention is paid to them on an official basis.

Consequently, he said, the theme of the next issue of the Green Book will be "The Role of Women in Missouri."

"This has never been done by the state and I think it is about time we recognized them."

This year's manual is due out in October, one month earlier than the last book, his third since taking office. Kirkpatrick noted that it formerly was the custom to issue the book in March of the second year after elections. He has been able to advance the release date ahead now by five months, with this fall's the earliest ever issued.

"We have asked the artist and designer to give us the best and most beautiful book they can produce," he said.

One of the major editorial beneiftis of the new book, the secretary said, will be the updating of salaries of state employes and officials.

Heretofore, he explained, each department had reported its salaries. This resulted in some figures that were somewhat less than accurate.

"This year we are having the budget and comptroller's offices give us a computer printout of every salary. When we let the contract we can give them all of the salaries at one time up to the last minute, and it will be accurate."

One of the major problems of putting out a state manual is the size. If everything were used that the many departments and officials want used, the book would be so huge it would be filled with trivia and details to the point of uselessness.

"If there is one action that makes it all worthwhile for what we have done up to date," he said, "it is the counting of all election ballots at one time."

Before he pushed for election law reforms, absentee ballots were counted later in election week and at each election many contests were undecided until as late as Saturday after a Tuesday election.

"However," the secretary of state continued, "I am disappointed we haven't been able to do more." Many of the reforms he suggested and has urged be adopted have not been passed by the Legislature.

It is important, Secretary Kirkpatrick said, that the laws be updated and the conflicts which still exist be removed from the election statutes. "They need to be made more understandable and they need to be consolidated."

He urged the appointment of a revision commission to make a thorough study of the election laws. The commission should have a paid staff to go through the laws and come up with a recodification recommendation that would eliminate the contradictions and put the laws together in unified form, he said.

Such a procedure was followed several years ago with the education laws, the secretary recalled, but it has never been done with election laws. "They've been added to and amended until they are a patchwork quilt."

In addition, he continued, "Missouri needs statewide registration." This now is on a local option basis.

Kirkpatrick said 32 out of 114 counties now have registration, with Iron, St. Francois and Dunklin adopting it in the past year. Eleven others have partial registration, as the City of Cape Girardeau did a few years ago until it was adopted on a countywide basis.

Much of the opposition, he said, comes from smaller counties which say they "can't afford it." But, he noted, Worth County, the smallest in Missouri with 4,000 population, has adopted it and "if they can pay for it, certainly other counties can."

Statewide registration has been recommended the past two sessions of the Legislature by the Election Study Commission, Kirkpatrick said. Last session it passed in the House, but was killed when Sen. Noel Cox, R-29th District, amended it to require the state to pay for those counties which said they could not pay the cost. "This was the kiss of death," the secretary said.

This year there has been a switch in procedure. The measure has been introduced in the Senate and the Election Laws subcommittee has reported it out with the recommendation, "Do pass." It now is on the Senate calendar.

"From the standpoint of orderly elections," the secretary of state said, "It is a must."

made his mark.

It was he who initiated long-needed election reforms in Missouri, urging the Legislature to revise the election laws, make them more responsive and eliminate much of the doubletalk in the statutes.

Representatives from Sikeston will attend a statewide meeting of employes of the Farmers Home Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture in St. Louis April 21-23.

Attending will be Harry Littleton, district supervisor; Bobby Hicks county supervisor; Charles Lindley, assistant county supervisor; Sherman Hill, construction inspector; Mary Jo Anderson, assistant county supervisor (home) Elvira Metz, county office clerk; Alice Dawes, assistant county office clerk; and Catherine Kem, assistant county office clerk.

Sees Need For Techniques To Expand Mind

THE SHAPE OF MINDS TO COME. By John G. Taylor. Weybright and Talley. $6.95.

Taylor is discussing in this book what he calls the mental revolution, as distinguished from the mechanical revolution which has had so much effect on man's life in the last 300 years. His main point is that the revolution of the mind must be speeded up quickly before civilization destroys itself.

His procedure is to comb through hundreds of research reports. His background is that of a physicist, but he discusses a great many medical, surgical, physiological and psychological matters.

There are chapters on the prospect for extending man's intelligence and memory, for expanding the consciousness, for controlling emotions. Others are on sleep, drugs and such paranormal psychic phenomena as telepathy and clairvoyance.

One of Taylor's principal themes is that consciousness seems to be dependent upon electrical and chemical processes within the brain. That leads him to the proposition that there may be no such thing as free will, one of the keystones to moral, political and religious institutions of the past and present.

Taylor presents some awesome possibilities for the improvement of the human mind in the next few decades, but these possibilities also involve some frightening problems. Some readers may question part of the author's vision of the future, but there is no doubt that he has written a provocative book.

10 New School Buses Ordered

HOWARDVILLE— New Madrid County R-1 enlarged board of education released contracts for ten new buses: eight Fords and two Chevrolets.

There were five bids for the bodies, and the low bid was the Watts' Company, representing Ward bodies, of Conway, Ark. For the chassis there were six bids. Low bid for the eight Fords was Bill Hayes Ford Company at Portageville, and for the two Chevrolets, low bidder was Ponder Chevrolet-Buick Company of Charleston.

In our town they do NOT take up the sidewalks after 9 o'clock. They just take in all the people.

Construction on Butler Road

JEFFERSON CITY — Construction is underway on U. S. route 67 in Butler county.

It is adjacent to the road from U. S. route 60 north to route 0. Flagmen are to be observed, the Missouri state highway department warns.

Conference At Missouri School for Blind

ST. LOUIS — A conference for parents of visually handicapped children who will be considered for enrollment in Sept. 1971, will be held at the Missouri School for the Blind, 3815 Magnolia, April 26-27.

Children must be five years or older by Oct. 1, 1971, to be considered for enrollment.

Parents and their visually handicapped children are invited to spend the two days to get acquainted with the school's staff and education program. School will be in session, and classes may be observed. General physical and eye examinations will be given, and the school readiness of each child will be evaluated.

The children may go to supervised play areas during several periods of the two days. Older students may visit classes. Registration should be in advance. There is no charge for the conference, and visitors from out of town are invited to stay overnight at the school. Meals will be provided at the school for all persons attending the conference.

For more information and registration material, parents or interested parties may write or call the Missouri School for the Blind, 3815 Magnolia, St. Louis, Missouri, Telephone 776-4320.

The Missouri School for the Blind is a state operated school which offers a regular educational program from kindergarten through high school. Instruction is offered in both braille and large print. Students may transfer from the public schools to the School for the Blind, and they may also return to the public schools if they are able to compete successfully with normally sighted students. Boarding facilities are available for out-of-town students.

The costs to the parents are transportation, clothing, medical needs, and personal needs and allowances.

Paid any drug bills lately?

If you have you are already well aware of the high cost of modern medicine.

If you haven't, consider yourself lucky. But don't press your luck. Doctor and drug bills are continuing to rise. And you or a member of your family could be stuck with them overnight.

Israeli Indecision Barrier to Peace

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The major immediate obstacle to a Mideast settlement is the inability of the Israeli government to agree within itself on what it would settle for.

And until the Israelis do reach some consensus on basics, there can be no meaningful peace talks with Egypt.

These U.S. officials believe the Israeli have become so inured to Arab hard-line extremism that when Egypt's Anwar Sadat came up with extremely reasonable proposals, the Israeli found they had no contingency plans for such a situation.

The hawks and doves in the Israeli cabinet are now so divided it is impossible for our top men to get a reasonable fix from the Israeli government, even in confidence, on what it wants or for what it would consider settling. High Israeli officials, who have in the past talked very frankly indeed to their American counterparts in private, now talk in evasive riddles.

But the time to act is now. Factors in the Arab world which have been adverse to a decision for years, now seem to be under control, at least temporarily.

- Sadat has wide backing among Egyptian intellectuals, government officials, businessmen, students, and even in the military, in his moves for peace.

The Egyptians in almost all circles are tired of this war and want peace so that they can go about their business. They see little value in prolonging a conflict with Israel which threatens to go on endlessly to no purpose and which would, in any event, bring them little, even if Egypt won.

- Sadat, if sources close to the White House are correct, badly wants to resume diplomatic relations with the United States and to build up a close, friendly relationship.
- Sadat, himself, high U.S. officials say, is a reasonable, intelligent and ingenious man who means business. (He is, of course, primarily concerned for the interests of his own country and not adverse, in his country's interest, to playing the Soviet Union and the United States off against each other.)

But time will not wait.

Sadat does not have Abdel Nasser's powerful grip on the government and the army. He has powerful detractors in the military—men not satisfied with moderate solutions. These officers are lying low now. But unless Sadat is able to show results in a reasonable time, the extremists could take over. It can be said there is some consternation at the White House that now, when time is of the essence, the Israeli turn indecisive.

Billy Joe Thomas was born 24 years ago in Houston, Texas.

B. J. was chosen by Burt Bacharach and Hal David to sing their tune, "Raindrops Keep Fallin' on My Head," in the Paul Newman film "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." Since then, "Raindrops" was not only the number one record in the country, but has sold well over three million copies, and won the Academy Award for "Best Song." "I Just Can't Help Believing" was top 10 on the national charts, and his next single, "Most Of All" looks like it will follow suit.

New Programs by Legislature Criticized

JEFFERSON CITY — Thirty-six new boards, commissions and other agencies would be created by bills pending in the legislature, Missouri Public Expenditure Survey reported today.

It urged restraint by the legislature in adding more agencies to the state government's organizational structure which it described as an unmanageable hodgepodge.

New agencies being proposed, the Survey said, range from a board of environmental sanitarians to a division of highway safety, and include: 15 boards, 12 commissions, two divisions, three agencies, one bureau, one authority and two councils.

Where new services or functions are found necessary, the Survey said, they should be assigned to existing agencies wherever possible.

The Survey noted that the state's organizational structure now consists of more than 110 separate agencies. They have been placed in the structure, it said, with little regard for logical location or overall efficiency of state government More lines of authority run directly between the governor and agencies than any executive could encompass in his span of control, the Survey added. It said some departments are little more than loose federations of agencies, and numerous agencies are not contained in any department.

To streamline the state's structure, the Survey noted, the legislature created a bi-partisan State Reorganization Commission, now engaged in a two-year study to develop a simpler, more orderly structure.

Country and Western Music Festival in June

GOLDEN POND, KY. — The Murray Art Guild will sponsor a Jackson Purchase County and Western Jubilee, June 26 and 27, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Conservation Education Center in Land Between the Lakes. The musical program will be a part of the Western Kentucky Arts and Crafts Festival that will be held near Center Station.

Auditions and a program planning session will be held Saturday afternoon, May 1, at 3 p.m. in the recital hall, Fine Arts Building, Murray State University. Old-time fiddlers, banjo pickers, guitar players, folk singers, and other performers in the country and western field are welcome. A self-addressed, stamped envelope must accompnay each request for an audition.

Any performer or musical group may obtain an application for audition from Chuck's Music Center, 1411 Main Street, Murray, Kentucky, or write to L. N. Clark, Box 1133, Murray State University, Murray, Kentucky 42071.

Arts Festival At Land Between Lakes

GOLDEN POND, Ky. — The Murray Art Guild will sponsor a second annual Western Kentucky arts and crafts festival in Land Between the Lakes June 26-27. Land Between the Lakes is TVA's big outdoor recreation area between Kentucky Lake and Lake Barkley in western Kentucky and Tennessee.

"We are announcing our festival early in order to give artists and craftsmen ample opprotunity to prepare their exhibits," said Mrs. Susanne Doyle, Chairman of the gala event."We hope that Kentucky artists and craftsmen as well as those from surrounding states will participate in this year's festival," she said.

Last year approximately 5,000 people viewed the work of the more than 50 artists and craftsmen who exhibited in the Conservation Education Center of Land Between the Lakes. Some of the festival participants came from as far away as Nashville and Memphis.

Only orginal work may be exhibited at the festival. No manufactured items such as those articles made from molds or kits will be accepted. Paintings, ceramics, leathercraft, wood carvings, needlework, weaving, and jewelry are among the different items that may be exhibited. A special attraction at this year's festival will be the JacksonPurchase Country-Western Jubilee under the direction of Mr. L. N. Clark, Murray State University. Details on the musical program will be announced at a later date. Those wishing to exhibit in the Arts and Crafts Festival should contact Mrs. Barbara Harrell, Route 1, Box 511, Murray, Kentucky 42071, phone area code 502, 753-8555. Mrs. Harrell will provide detailed information on the festival.

ALLOTMENT CUTBACK FORCES LAYOFF OF STATE EMPLOYES

JEFFERSON CITY — State agencies began planning employe layoffs and other cost cuttings steps last week in response to a 15 per cent reduction of their fourth quarter allotment checks.

Mental Health Director Dr. George Ulett announced plans to lay off 2,200 of his 9,000 employes by April 15. Besides the layoffs, Ulett said, many mental hospital patients will have to be discharged to the custody of their relatives. Admissions to mental hospitals will be sharply reduced and limited to only the most acutely ill.

Division of Insurance superintendent William Y. McCaskill wiped out scheduled insurance license examinations in four cities for April, May and June.

Other serious cuts in services were being considered at the University of Missouri, the state colleges, and primary and secondary schools.

The allotment cutbacks were ordered by State Comptroller John C. Vaughn, who says the state will fall some $20 million short of total revenue anticipated for the year ending June 30 unless buying trends pick up.

Meanwhile, the state legislature, in recess for its annual Easter break, has made little headway on major tax measures to finance state government next year.

Although the House has approved an $80 million extension to the one-year income tax hike approved in December, the Senate is evenly split between sales and income measures.

Senators last week rejected, on a 16-16 vote, a one-year income tax extension proposed by Sen. Maurice Schechter (D-Creve Coeur).

Schechter's bill, which included reform provisions to allow Missouri tax laws to more nearly fit federal laws, was severely amended before its eventual defeat.

Proponents of a one-cent tax increase played a major role in beating down the income tax measure, but they were not able to agree on what type of sales tax should be approved.

Sen. Omar (Avery (D-Troy), sponsor of the sales tax hike, originally wanted a one-cent hike with half of the $120 million per year additional income earmarked for capital improvements during the next three years. But Avery has several times had to lay the bill over and come in with a new version after various exemptions and credits were added during floor action.

Avery says he'll try again with a compromise bill after the Easter break. That bill will include a one-half cent sales tax increase and produce about $55 million in revenue, he said.

Even if the compromise measure passes, it will not meet the full revenue needs of the state during 1971-72. Avery readily admits that fact and says he would prefer to pass a sales tax hike and then reconsider the income tax idea for additional revenue.

And any revenue measure also would have to be approved by the House. The House is insisting on the income tax and recent difficulties on emergency appropriations indicate the two champers may have trouble agreeing on a final answer.

THERE'S FREE WATER UNDER THE GROUND

Are you tired of lawn-sprinkling restrictions and other water shortage problems? Of a heavy chlorine taste in your drinking glass? Of increased water bills?

If you are, consider having you own well and automatic electric water system. With it you can have all the water you want, and it will taste better than "city" water. Once the system is installed, you get free water. The only cost will be the few pennies it takes to run the electric motor. According to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau water from a well cost about 5 cents per thousand gallons, less than half of what you pay for city water.

The modern water system is a far cry from the old-fashioned dug well and hand pump. It consists of a well that's only a few inches in diameter, an electric pump, a tank to hold the water and automatc controls tc turn the pump on and off when the water in the tank reaches a predetermined level.

Over 950,000 electric water systems are installed each year. A recent survey shows that the overwhelming majority of families that have their own systems wouldn't trade them for city water.

If you'd like more information about having your own water system, send 25 cents in coint to Dept. P, Water Systems Council, 221 North LaSalled Street, Chicago, Ill. 60601. As for "Free Water: A Guide to Private Wells and Water Systems."

Hanoi On The Ropes Once Again

ART BUCHWALD
In The Commercial Appeal

WASHINGTON — When ever something new happens in the war in Indochina, I always seek out my dear friend Joseph Wallstop, the dean of the hawk columnists.

Last fall, as the war was winding down, Joe had become more and more depressed, so I didn't know what mood I'd find him in. Happily, when I went down to his war room located in the basement of his house, I found him dancing a jig.

"They've finally listened to me," Joe said gleefully.

"I've wanted to invade Laos for four years.

"That's wonderful, Joe," I said. "It must be great to see a dream come true."

"I didn't think President Nixon had the guts," Joe said. "But, thank God, he has finally bought my plan. Hanoi will be on the ropes in a matter of weeks."

"I thought you told everyone Hanoi was on the ropes after the Tet offensive."

"They were on the ropes," Joe said. "But they didn't know it. I still maintain the Tet offensive was the biggest allied victory of the war."

"Bigger than the invasion of Cambodia?" I said.

"Cambodia was different. In Cambodia I wiped out all the Communist sanctuaries that were supplying the Reds in South Vietnam."

"But if you wiped out all the Communist sanctuaries, why did you have to go into Laos?"

"Because, you idiot, Hanoi is hurting, so they're sending everything down the Ho Chi Minh Trail. Once I interdict the Ho Chi Minh Trail, I'll have the Commies on the ropes again."

He put on his campaign hat and said: "This is what I want to do: I want to bomb everything in Cambodia and Laos. This may force Hanoi to send their stuff through Thailand."

"Why, it's the old interdiction play," I said.

"Exactly. This will give me an excuse to invade Thailand. Once I'm in Thailand I'll give General Abrams time to shape up the South Vietnamese army so they can invade North Vietnam."

"You're going to invade North Vietnam?"

"What choice do I have?" Joe replied. "Once I clean out the sanctuaries in North Vietnam, Hanoi will be on the ropes."

"So they'll sue for peace?" I said excitedly.

"No, they won't," he said disgustedly. "They'll ask the Chinese to intervene."

"Joe," I said nevrously, "you're not thinking of sending the South Vietnamese into China?"

"Why not?" said Joe. "That's where all the supplies are coming from."

The Crumbling Hemisphere

By DAVID LAWRENCE

The preoccupation of the United States with its own domestic troubles and with an expensive war in Vietnam has diverted our attention from what has been happening in Central and South America, where relations with the U. S. are deteriorating seriously and the Communists are making new gains.

After years of development, the Latin-American countries have made some progress toward taking care of their expanding populations. Now, however, there is a mounting hostility against foreign capital and a growing assumption that the nationalizing of basic industries will rebound to a country's economic advantage.

But this assumption rests on shaky premises. Businessmen in other parts of the world are not going to invest in areas where there is a threat of expropriation of their property at any time by regimes turning to socialization. The risks are too great. Moreover, none of the governments has available the vast amount of capital that is necessary to develop the industries which can produce a large output for export and bring in substantial revenues.

The phenomenon of rising nationalism throughout Latin America is opening the way for Communists to move in. New Soviet embassies are springing up in various capitals, bringing in a horde of propagandists and subversive agents along with the diplomats. Where U. S. aid is slowed or halted to nations at loggerheads with Washington over expropriation without fair compensation or over fishing rights for our tuna boats, the Reds are there to offer trade agreements or technical assistance.

As country after country nationalized major industries — oil, copper, electric power — and expels foreign interests, the Communists are busily jockeying for positions of power. They undoubtedly believe thay can eventually gain complete control of Latin American governments.

The problems are not confined to industrial production. The Communists are involved in organizing workers, including those on farms, and in some cases dominate the labor movement.

Communist agents are being trained in Cuba by Castro's regime, and they are responsible for many of the organizing activities being carried on by Latin Americans in their respective countries. The object, of course, is to promote Communism in political parties and ultimately give Moscow a foothold on the mainland.

Some analysts believe that much of the terrorism in Latin America — such as the kidnapping of diplomats of the United States and other Western nations — is related to Soviet plotting. There is a similarity in the way the terrorists operate everywhere. Also, it is to be noted that kidnappings are clearly intended to emphasize the weakness of the governments of Latin America and especially their inability to maintain order.

Already, leftwing threats to several governments in South America have cause three out of every four people on the continent to come under military rule. One gloomy prediction is that the day is not far off when everybody in that area may be under some form of totalitarianism — military or Communist.

Certainly the future is not bright for Latin America. This is due almost entirely to the fact that economic and social questions have not been given the consideration necessary to bring about real improvement in most countries. The only way the South-American nations will emerge from their present plight, in the opinion of many observers, is through the cooperation of the major powers of the world and particularly of the neighbor to the North who has befriended them over the years.

The United States, through the Alliance for Progress, started an ambitious program of financial and technical aid for Latin America but has not been able to keep it up. The Latin Americans are disappointed. They expected continuous and massive help.

The Nixon Administration has been following a policy toward Latin America known as the "low profile." This plan was intended to reduce friction between us and other nations of the hemisphere by removing the United States from a position of prominence in the affairs of the region. The theory was that this would spur self-help efforts among the Latin-American countries and cause them to regard us more as a partner than as the dominant power.

Unfortunately, the "Low Profile" policy is not working out quite that way. Many Latin Americans are said to interpret Washington's new approach as meaning that North Americans do not care what happens in the South. A coolness and resentment have developed. The leaders of the Communist worldgive every indication of attempting to turn this to their own advantage.

A constructive program laid down by our Government would have a far-reaching effect at this critical time. The opportunity is at hand to prevent Moscow and its allies from driving a wedge into Pan-American relations and crumbling a hemisphere.

U.S. Faces A Speaker Famine

Art Buchwald in The Commercial Appeal

WASHINGTON-- My friend S. J. Michelson, a registered ghost writer who works out of New York, has just added a new terror to those that have been predicted for the 1980s. S. J. predicts that in 10 years from now there will be a famine in speakers the likes of which the United States has never seen.

S. J. told me: "This country is using up rhetoric twice as fast as it can be reproduced, and if we keep wasting our speakers as we are doing now, we could find ourselves speechless by 1985."

Citing scientific data, S. J. said, "There were 11,198 prepared and extemporaneous speeches delivered last year in the city of New York not counting TV appearances by Mayor John Lindsay.

"Ten years ago there were only 4,506. By 1980 the demand for speeches by Rotary Clubs alone will be 23,987. Even with a new crop of politicians, radical students and Women's Lib activists, it will be impossible to supply one-quarter of the requests for speakers in 10 years from now."

I asked S.J. how he explained the escalating demand for speakers.

"This is a country that thrives on meetings. Three Americans can't have breakfast, lunch or dinner together without booking a speaker to address them. We are holding more conventions, more protest meetings and more fund-raising events than any time in our history. People have no solutions to any of the problems we face so they demand supposed experts to solve their problems for them.

"Unfortunately the more complicated our problems become, the more meetings we hold and the less experts we have to go around.

"For example, in any given night in this country there are 5,679 Republican fund-raising dinners going on. At the same time there is only one Spiro Agnew. Everyone knows you can spread Spiro Agnew just so far."

"But surely there must be a lot of new speakers coming up to fill the needs of the country," I protested.

"That's just the point. The younger generation which we were counting on to help out can't talk."

"What do you mean they can't talk?"

"The new generation can't verbalize! They've been listening to rock music since they were born and watching television since they were 3, and it's impossible for them to complete a sentence much less deliver a speech. The reason so many of our radical students use four-letter words these days is that they don't know the correct word to use in expressing a thought."

Are you a prospect for the Peace Corps?

Answer these 2 questions and see.

1. Are you experienced in some occupation or trade, such as engineering, farming or teaching? OR . . .

If you are a liberal arts major with no specialized training, would you be willing to be trained by the Peace Corps for a program based on your aptitudes?

2. Do you have a genuine desire to work in partnership with people in other parts of the world, helping them improve their lives?

If your answers to both questions are "yes", you are a prospect for the Peace Corps.

Young people just out of college. Mature people with seasoned skills. The Peace Corps today needs both. Want to know more? Send in the coupon. Today.

Public Notice

NOTICE TO SUBMIT BIDS TO BECOME COUNTY DEPOSITARY

In accordance with the law of the State of Missouri, relating to County Depositaries, notice is hereby given to all banks and bankers, that for the purpose of selecting a county depositary or depositaries, for all the public funds of Scott County, Missouri, of every kind and description, including, among other funds, the "County Collector's Fund" for the period ending sixty-five days after the time of selecting a new County depositary in May, 1971, all of said funds will be divided into two equal parts. All banks and bankers desiring to become County depositary of all, or either of said part of said funds, may submit sealed proposals therefor up to 12 o'clock noon, Monday, May 3rd, 1971, to the undersigned Clerk of the County Court of Scott County, Missouri, stating the rate of interest on daily balances such bank or bankers offer to pay, also the number of parts for which it desires to bid.

Each of said bids must be accompanied by a certified check for not less than such proportions of 1½% of the county revenue of the preceding year, as the sum of the said parts of said funds bid for, bears to the whole number of said parts as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the bidder, that if his bid should be accepted he will enter into the depositary bond provided for by law.

Bids will be publicly opened at noon on Monday, May 3rd, 1971.

WITNESS my hand and the official seal of the County Court, done at my office in Benton, Missouri this 12th day of April, 1971.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of One and one-half inch hotmix asphaltic pavement on six inch soil cement base constructed to insure surface drainage in accordance with plans & specifications on Alabama Street from Washington to Compress Road, in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows; Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. Section 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $2.75 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statues of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates have been established by the Industrail Commission of Missouri. Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Beverly Todd

Under Twenty

By Kurt Lassen

Turning down roles is not usually what actresses do. It is, however, what Beverly Todd does quite often. Last year, for example, she turned down two major motion pictures and a television series. She does it because she has set down definite standards for herself.

"It isn't the size of the role that influences me," she told us, "it's the quality and the content of it. On the television series I would have been able to make out very well, but I've worked too hard and too long to become an actress to do anything but the very best I can do. On a series, things are usually done in such a hurry that you don't get a chance to do your best."

One role Beverly didn't turn down was starring opposite Sidney Poitier in "Brother John." "I took that," she said, "because it was real and it was honest. It was honest in terms of the black experience and, of course, Sidney is absolutely wonderful to work with."

The fact that Beverly turns down roles doesn't mean she isn't kept busy. In less than 12 months, she has completed four films, "Summer Kill," "The Lost Man," also with Sidney Poitier; "Some Kind of Nut," and "They Call Me Mister Tibbs," with Poitier.

"Brother John' was a wonderful experience," Beverly told us. "The set when you're working with Sidney is always so relaxed and easy. He doesn't blow up, he works so calmly and professionally that everyone else on the set just falls into the same mood and it all seems to work so well."

From the time Beverly actively decided to become an actress, and that was when she was in grammar school, she has stuck to her guns in choosing what she wanted to do. "It wasn't always easy. It still isn't," she said. "There was a time when I could have worked on the stage, but I worked as an office temporary instead. And, if I had to do it again to keep taking roles I really didn't want, I'd go back to being a secretary and, without bragging, I must say I was a pretty good one."

Beverly began her training at the famed Karamu Theatre in Cleveland. Her work there attracted attention from New York producers and she was invited to fly to New York for an audition for a Broadway before. All the way in I kept thinking the whole thing was impossible. When I got up on the stage to sing, absolutely nothing happened. I couldn't hit a note, couldn't project. Everything was just horrible.

"I knew the people who were listening just sat there wondering why in the world anyone had bothered to ask me in for an audition. I got off the stage, caught my plane back to Cleveland, and naturally, didn't hear another word."

It wasn't too long thereafter that Beverly was again invited to New York where she won a part in an off-Broadway play and supplemented her income as a secretary for an insurance company. "My boss was wonderful," she told us. "When I had to go off for an audition, he'd let me go and I'd work twice as fast to make up for it."

One of Beverly's dreams is to start a school for small children in Harlem. She's a girl who believes strongly in working in and for her community. In short, Beverly is a girl with beliefs and principles. Producers and casting directors have found this out.

If the right roles don't come along ("sometimes the pickings are slim") you may find Beverly working as an office temporary. But the chances of that are also very, very slim.

State Capitalism

By Ralph C. Deans
Editorial Research Reports

Washington — In his classic economic tract, Wealth of Nations (1776), Adam Smith made the observation that a capitalist generally does not, through business, intend to promote the public interest. But Smith's revolutionary concept in the 18th century was that capitalists were led to work for the common good by an "invisible hand"-- the competitive forces of an open market which tend to promote efficiency and lower costs.

While Smith is still revered as the father of political economy, the "perfect competition" he saw between small firms has been superseded by the growth of corporate giantism. Big companies, which control significant portions of the market, have thrown competition out of whack. Their actions necessarily involve the national interest, inviting government control.

This is one current of thought in the gargument that the United States is headed for more government control of the economy. The current level of federal regulation is already a matter of controversy. Some 100 regulatory agencies exist now. President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said in its recent annual report to Congress that much of the railways' current spate of troubles could be traced to over-regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Regulation, the Council said, "appears to have promoted numerous inefficiencies and high freight rates." It recommended substantial deregulation.

Although federal regulation of business spread during the New Deal and in the two world wars, its orgins are much older. With the states unable to curb the abuses of railroads after the Civil War, Congress invoked the commerce clause of the Constitution in the original Interstate Commerce Act of 1877 to establish the Interestate Commerce Commission -- the first regulatory agency.

The creation of the ICC was a significant departure from the hitherto prevailing view of limited government authority in free enterprise — that wrongs in private business might be punished but not prevented. This change in attitude owed much to the reforms urged by the Populists and muchrakers, who were reacting to the excesses of big business in that free-wheeling era of robber barons, profiteering and plunder.

Historians see some evidence that President Franklin Roosevelt's attitude toward regulatory agencies may have changed after his first term of office, from 1933 to 1937, when he created more of them than any other President. During his second term, Roosevelt concentrated on reform of these agencies. Reforms have been attempted by many Presidents but, according to Louis M. Kohlmeier Jr., an expert on regulatory agencies, the history of reform has been "uneven and disappointing." While some economists fear that regulatory agencies may control the entire economy, others believe that they are an alternative to the nationalization of many industries. John Kenneth Galbraith argues that defense, space and atomic energy concerns are already government corporations, except in name, and should be nationalized to remove the fiction that they aren't.

Small companies are making a comeback in many industries — steel is a notable example -- but it is too early to say whether the comeback is strong enough to reintroduce a new element of competition into the economic system and save it from further government-imposed controls. Several forces are pushing in the opposite direction. These include consumers who want protection and pollution foes who want better, if not more, enforcement.

Moreover, the New Left is calling upon business to discard its traditional goal of enlarging profits and turn to serving society. If business does not respond to the demands for pollution control, equal-opportunity hiring and social revelance, Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans warns, "the very possible alternative could be government control, regulation, regimentation, an alteration of our system."

To many observers, the gravest and most immediate danger to free enterprise is the growing possibility that government, in having to rescue failing corporations, will involve itself deeper and deeper until the line between the private and public sector is hopelessly blurred. Thus state capitalism -- or "welfare capitalism" to its detractors -- will become the hybrid offspring of a marriage of socialism and free enterprise.

A dual track meet in which Sikeston and Charleston met at Charleston last Friday afternoon went to the Bluejay crew by a score of 84 to 26. Wigdor and Simmons of Charleston, each accounted for 15 points to tie for high point honors. Paul "Snake" Crain was high point man for Sikeston with 14 points.

Fire of undetermined origin caused damage estimated at $3,000 to house and furniture belonging to Jake Goldstein Wednesday morning. An explosion which carried away all upper floor windows and hurled curtains across the street startled the neighborhood.

Mrs. Mary Lucille Crain will leave for St. Louis Tuesday to spend a week with friends.

The Sikeston Greenhouse shipped several hundred cuttings of improved chrysanthemums to a customer in New York State Tuesday of this week. This is a very busy establishment at this time and a very interesting place to visit.

That's The Law

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Wilma was a buxom beauty who, unfortunately, had more brains in her little finger than she had in her whole head. Aged 34, she had the mentality of a 6-year-old. While thus deficient, however, there was nothing deficient in Wilma's well rounded figure.

She attracted men like a sexual lodestone and on two occasions produced two mentally deficient children. Rating her daughter's productions "X", Wilma's mother petitioned the court for an order directing Wilma to undergo an operation that would thereafter prevent her from having children.

"I'm an old lady," she told the judge, "and I can't take the physical, financial and emotional strain of taking care of Wilma's brood. After all , two generations of imbeciles should be sufficient."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you put an end to the string of imbeciles by granting the order?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the application of Wilma's mother was based solely on social and economic grounds. And, he concluded, in effect, there was no legal authority for directing such an operation of a physically healthy woman, despite the fact that she may be sexually promiscuous and unable to take care of herself and her children.

(Based upon a 1969 Texas Court of Appeals Decision)

The oldest printed book still extant is a Buddhist scroll, Diamond Sutra of A.D. 868, 16 feet long, in the British Museum.

The Prayer
from
The Upper Room

Go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee. (Mark 16:7)

PRAYER: O God of love, who loves the sinner in spite of his sin and dirt, we cannot hope to be worthy of Thy love. But help us to return Thy love as best we can and show it forth by loving our fellowmen wherever they may be, whatever the language they speak, or the work they do. In Jesus' name we pray. Amen

Book Review

CHICANO
by Richard Vasquez
(Avon W240/$1.25/352pp.)

Chicanos--Mexican-Americans on the move, in search of their identity, their past and their future--perhaps the most neglected ethnic group in a neglectful society. In CHICANO, award-winning newspaperman Richard Vasquez turns to the medium of the novel to write of the struggled of his people in the American Southwest.

The novel depicts the heavy burden of prejudice and poverty under which the Chicano has suffered, tracing the story from one family's origins in Mexico at the time of the 1910 Revolution through four generations to the present period in the East Los Angeles barrio.

MIAMI GOLDEN BOY
by Herbert Kastle
(Avon W253/$1.25/416pp.)

Miami Beach, perhaps the gaudiest playground of them all, sets the stage for a novel that has been termed "As explosive as the latest H-bomb!" (by The Tulsa World). MIAMI GOLDEN BOY, by Herbert Kastle, author of THE MOVIE MAKER, makes its paperback debut as an Avon book.

The players in this game of expensive fun and dangerous intrigue include a super-stud out for big money and real love; a girl who is beautiful, rich and the carrier of a secret powerful enough to shake the nation; an iron-willed former President of the United States who still rules the country as well as his glamorous family from a wheelchair; a black singer who gets involved with the wrong white woman; and a Senator next in line for the Presidency and suddenly the target of a lunatic kidnap scheme.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, April 12, the 102nd day of 1971. There are 263 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1961, the Soviet Union became the first nation to put a man in space.

On this date:

In 1606, the Union Jack became the national flag of England.

In 1777, the American statesman, Henry Clay, was born in Hanover County, Virginia.

In 1916, American soldiers under Gen. John J. Pershing were fighting in Mexico against forces led by Pancho Villa.

In 1945, President Franklin D Roosevelt died, and Harry S. Truman was sworn in as the 33rd president.

Ten years ago—President John F. Kennedy pledged that the U.S. armed forces would not intervene in Cuba under any conditions to help bring about the downfall of the Castro government.

One year ago—The U.S. Apollo 13 spacecraft, carrying three astronauts, sped past the halfway point on a lunar mission.

Airline Fare Hike Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board gave the scheduled airlines permission today to raise domestic fares as much as 6 per cent early next month.

The board also proposed that within 50 days, if no exceptions are filed, the airlines be permitted coach fare increases up to 9 per cent.

The CAB ruling came at the end of the first stage of a massive fare investigation. Remaining stages, having to do with discount fares and general fare structure, will be decided later.

The immediate increase of 6 per cent cannot be added on top of recent selective increases granted by the board to various airlines in congested markets.

The airlines will be permitted increases only to the extent that prior increases do not reach 6 per cent, the board said.

Where certain recent increases exceed 9 per cent over the fares that were in effect last Oct. 15, the fares must be rolled back not later than May 14 to the 9 per cent level.

Where previous increases exceed 6 per cent but are less than 9 per cent, the airlines may retain such fares in effect.

The CAB decision thus permits a $2.00 increase in the coach fare between Atlanta and Memphis, from $32 to $34, including tax; a $5 increase between detroit and Miami, to $86; and a $1 increase between Indianapolis and Washington, to $45.

On the Boston-New York route, where increases were granted recently, the coach fare will be cut back from $26 to $24.

The board also proposed for the first time to establish load standards and seating standards in the calculation of fares.

The board said the 9 per cent fare increase is based on a finding that the average load is 52.5 per cent of capacity.

The CAB noted that this load factor dropped in actual operations from 57.2 per cent in 1967 to 50 per cent in 1969 and 48 per cent for the year ending last September 30.

"A policy of basing fares on actual load factors can only lead to increasing over capacity, with the traveling public being asked to pay higher fares to compensate the carriers for the cost of operating an increasing number of empty seats," the board said.

"This result is virtually inevitable because schedules constitute the major competitive device of carriers in their efforts to preserve and enhance their participation in the traffic markets which they serve."

State Military Schools Report Enrollment Dip

LEXINGTON, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's three military academies are being hurt by declining enrollments.

Officials at the academies — Wentworth in Lexington, Missouri Military at Mexico, and Kemper Military at Boonville — agree that growth of community junior colleges has been a big factor, along with the economic recession.

Deaths

ROY HALE

PUXICO — Roy Virgil Hale, 46, died Saturday in the John Cochron Veterans hospital, St. Louis.

He was born Feb. 18, 1925 in Shioney.

He was a member of the General Baptist church and a veteran of World War II. On Oct. 6, 1946, he married Lorene Wilfong.

Survivors include his wife of Poplar Bluff; six brothers, Lee and Leonard Hale, both of Poplar Bluff; the Rev. Jesse Hale of Wappapello; Floyd Hale of ths state of California; and Donald and Delbert Hale of Wood River, Ill.; and five sisters, Mrs. Pearl Daves of Jersey, Ill., Mrs. Ivy Graham and Louise Hale, both of Wood River, Ill., and Mrs. Freda Williams and Edith Allison, both of the state of California.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Watkins and Sons Funeral Home chapel in Dexter with the Rev. Don Black officiating.

Burial will be in the Puxico cemetery.

MRS. ANNA DAY

ADVANCE— Services for Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Day, 81, Advance, were held Saturday afternoon at Morgan Funeral Home with Richard Smith, officiating.

Burial was in Morgan Memorial Park.

Mrs. Day died Thursday in a St. Louis hospital. She was a member of the Advance Jehovah's Witnesses Church.

She was born Nov. 1, 1889, at Edwardsville, Ill., and married Frank C. Day, Dec. 15, 1913. He died Aug. 11, 1965.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. Ruth Rice, Brookfield, Ill., Mrs. Lois Hayes and Mrs. June Jones, both of Hazelwood, and Mrs. Wilma Holland, Mobile, Ala.; a son, Hubert Day, Advance; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Inez Kirby, Dexter; two brothers, Willard and Walter Bailey, both of Poplar Bluff; a sister, Mrs. Virginia Tofflemire, Lynwood, Calif.; three half sisters, Mrs. Georgia Cooper, Dexter, Mrs. Hazel Leathers, Columbus Ga., and Mrs. Fay Mossmon, Flint, Mich.; eight grandchildren, and nine great-grandchildren.

Elms Hotel to Remain Closed

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo. (AP)--The well-known Elms Hotel, a one-time luxurous health spa that attracted visitors from throughout the United States, will remain closed this summer.

A spokesman for Gotham Hotels, Inc., said in New York Thursday "it has been decided not to open for business this year. The reservations we had booked were very light.

"Based on this," the spokesman continued, "the forecasted operations pointed to a loss if we did open. We are hoping the national economy will improve the next year."

The hotel came into being in 1898.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Reports that moisture was urgently needed in areas of the Southwest where the winter wheat crop is in the ground influenced heavy buying and an advance of 4 5/8 cents a bushel in wheat futures early on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

Corn prices also were higher but soybeans were mixed and oats were lower.

On the opening, wheat was 1¼ to 4 5/8 cents a bushel higher, May 1.63¾; corn was 3/8 to 1¼ higher, May 1.47¾; soybean were ¼ lower to ¼ higher, May 2.90¼, and oats were 1/8 to 3/8 lower, May 70¾ cents.

Nine Injured

David O. Blattle, 24, St. Louis, driver of a 1969 Plymouth, failed to round a curve at a barricade on highway 61 Saturday at 6:20 a.m., one mile south of Hayti, struck the barricade and overturned, the highway patrol reported.

Both were taken to Pemiscot County Memorialhospital in Hayti.

Larry J. Hart, 25, Charleston, received internal injuries, when his 1965 Pontiac was struck by a 1970 Peter built tractor, driven by James E. Smith, 22, Nashville, the patrol said.

Hart was taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Paul Gross, 23, St. Louis, received head injuries Saturday at 6:30 p.m. on highway 34, three miles east of Piedmont.

He lost control of his 1970 Ford, ran across road, struck a dirt embankment and overturned. He was taken to Doctors hospital in Poplar Bluff, the patrol said.

Stanley R. Gooch, 23, Portageville, driver of a 1970 Mercury, lost control of his car. It went off the road and overturned.

The patrol said a passenger, Reba Gream, 16, Portageville, had leaned over to kiss the driver, resulting in the accident. She received cuts on her back and was treated at Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti.

Two were injured Sunday at 10:15 in Cape Girardeau county on highway 61, one mile south of route KK.

A 1970 Chevrolet station wagon, driven by William A. Vorce, 51, Florissant, passed another vehicle and struck a 1963 Oldsmobile, driven by William Murray III, 26, St. Louis, the highway patrol said.

Vorce and Murray were bruised. Both were treated at Southeast Missouri hospital. An accident Sunday at 11:10 p.m. on highway 61, two miles south of Longtown injured two persons.

A 1970 Ford, driven by William J.Valleroy Jr., 17, Perryville, was forced off the road by an unidentified driver, causing Vallerot to lose control, striking a dirt embankment and overturning, the patrol said.

The driver has a cut over his eye. A passenger, Donald R. Clements, 21, Perryville received a head and leg injury.

Both were taken to Perry County Memorial hospital in Perryville.

Two Arrested After Trying To Pass Check

PUXICO— Two men whose names were withheld, were apprehended shortly after one of them tried to pass a check at Benny's IGA store Saturday at 5 p.m.

The men were taken in custody by the officers and taken to the Stoddard county jail in Bloomfield.

A search of the car disclosed other checks on the seat which were taken from McGowens store on highway 51, April 1, authorities said.

By NADINE TOWNSEND

NEW MADRID— An estimated 1,100 spectators viewed an Easter sunrise pageant and services Sunday on the Mississippi River.

A sunny, balmy Easter morning with the river as a background set the scene as an interdenominatal cast of 70 persons from New Madrid, Kewanee, Matthews and Sikeston re-enacted the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ.

Harold Sloas, general chairman, welcomed the visitors; Matthews high school concert choir with Bob Williamson, director and organist, sang "Hosanna", "Tis Finished", "He Carried the Cross for Me", and "Now Sing We joyfully Unto God"; the Rev. Earl Statler, First United Methodist Church, gave the invocation; and the Rev. Paul Walden, First Prebyterian Church, read the scripture.

Offertory prayer was given by the Rev. Bob Burnes, Grace Baptist Church, with offertory music by a brass ensemble from Matthews high school. Boy Scout Troop 48 served as ushers.

Four scenes depicting the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ were "The Last Supper"; "In the Garden of Gethsemane"; "The Arrest and Crucifixion"; and "The Resurraction".

Portraying Christ was Carl Meredith of Sikeston; disciples, "John", Bill French; "Peter", Bennett Commer; "James", Jim Edwards; "Judas", Johnnie Hammett; and "Thomas", Tommy Essary.

"Christ on Cross", Jimmy Harris; two thieves, Fred Copeland and Ricky Nowell; "Mary, Mother of Jesus", Lorene Thompson; "Mary, Mother of James", Velma Jean French; "Mary of Magdalene", Carol St. Mary; Centurian, Louis Evans of Sikeston.

Mrs. Dorothy Gardner was director. The Rev. Edward E. Wolfe, pastor of the Baptist church, gave the benediction.

Five Killed in Three Weekend Highway Crashes

Five were killed in three highway accidents on Southeast Missouri highways over Saturday and Sunday.

Killed in a headon crash Saturday at 8:30 p.m. on highway 61, three miles south of Perryville were Billy Wayne McGhee, 25, Chicago; Miss Nancy Revell, 16, Cape Girardeau, and Jesse Visor, 25, Detroit, who was dead on arrival at a St. Louis hospital. McGhee and Miss Revell were dead on arrival at Perryville Memorial hospital, Perryville.

Masso E. alloway, 22, St. Louis, was killed in an accident Sunday at 2:20 a.m. on highway 60, two miles west of Wyatt.

The fifth fatality was Robert Nichols, 52, St. Louis, killed Sunday at 2:05 a.m. on Interstate 55, one mile north of New Madrid.

In the fatal crash south of Perryville Saturday night both vehicles caught fire and were destroyed and two passengers were seriously injured. The injured were Harold Grayson, 29, New Madrid, driver of one of the cars, and Elias Trentham, 24, Chicago, driver of the other car. Both were taken to Perryville Memorial hospital.

The highway patrol said the Trentham car attempted to pass a car on a hill and crashed headon into the Grayson car.

The fiery crash held up traffic for one hour. Traffic was blocked for more than a half mile in both directions.

In the accident early Sunday morning on I-55, the patrol said a 1964 Mercury, driven by Linda Sue Stillwell, 22, Marion, Ill., was parked on the shoulder with car trouble when it was struck in the rear by a 1968 Ford, driven by Fleming J. Brooks, 63, St. Louis. Brooks lost control of his car, struck railroad overpass piling, and then hit the rear of Mercury.

Robert Nichols, passenger in the Brooks car, was killed, and three passengers in the car were injured. Nichols body was taken to Richards Funeral Home in New Madrid.

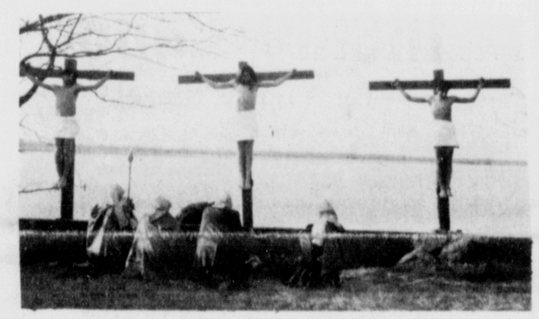

The injured were Leroy Johnson, 46, cuts on face; Gary Johnson 13, possible head and leg injury, and Ethel Mae Nichols, 50, all of St. Louis, face cuts and head injury.

Injured in the Stillwell car were Linda Stillwell, head injury and possible broken hip; and Russell Stillwell, 52, St. Louis, cuts on face and head.

The injured were taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital.

In the fatality Sunday morning on highway 60 west of Wyatt, the patrol said that Masso E. Calloway, 22, St. Louis, driver of a 1968 Buick, apparently went to sleep, and drove into the path of a 1970 Peter built tractor, driven by Milton H. Talley, 31, Manhattan, Kan.

Calloway was taken to Sparks Funeral Home in Charleston.

"CHIRST IS CRUCIFIED" and Roman soldiers cast lots for his robe -- a scene in the Easter sunrise pageant Sunday at New Madrid. Depicting Christ is Jimmy Harris, center; thieves, at left, Ricky Nowell and Fred Copeland, right.

"MARY OF MAGDALENE", portrayed by Carol St. Mary, as Christ reveals himself to her at the tomb scene in the Easter sunrise pageant Sunday at New Madrid.

"LO, I AM WITH YOU ALWAYS", the risen Christ portrayed by Carl Meredith of Sikeston, in the Easter sunrise pageant Sunday on the Mississippi River at New Madrid.

SAIGON (AP) — American troop strength in South Vietnam has dropped below 300,000 for the first time in more than 4½ years, the U.S. Command announced today, and a field commander disclosed new tactics to compensate for the further cutback of American forces.

A weekly summary said a total of 296,500 American servicemen were in Vietnam last Thursday, a drop of 5,400 during the week. The total included 223,100 Army, 40,500 Air wforce, 18,000 Marines, 14,800 Navy and 100 Coast Guard.

This was the smallest force since Aug 13, 1966, when a total of 296,000 American troops were in the country. U.S. strength reached a maximum of 543,500 in April 1969.

President Nixon has ordered the American force reduced to 284,000 by the end of this month, and he announced last week that another 100,000 would be withdrawn by Dec. 1.

Lt. Gen. Michael S. Davison, commander of the U.S. 2nd Field Force, said a total of about 7,500 U.S. combat troops will remain after May 1 in his area, Saigon and the 11 surrounding provinces.

These troops, he said, "will form a highly mobile and powerful reaction force capable of moving anywhere, anytime at a moement's notice to counter any enemy threat and supplement our Vietnamese allies.

"We will continue to provide training, logistical and air mobile support to the Vietnamese," he added.

Meanwhile, North Vietnamese troops shot down an American helicopter 90 miles south of Da Nang Sunday, then ambushed an infantry force trying to reach the survivors. The U.S. Command said 11 Americans were killed and eight were wounded.

Enemy losses were not known.

Open House At Fire Stations On May 8

Fire Chief Dolph Webb today announced that May 8 will be Fire Service Recognition Day. An open house will be held at the city's two fire stations for the public.

Webb urged all citizens to visit their nearest fire station and "see their apparatus and equipment and the professional type of service they provide today as contrasted with yesteryear."

The recognition day is being held, according to Webb, because the fire department performs many services in addition to fire fighting that the public doesn't realize.

"We also have dwelling inspections, pre-fire planning, inspections of commercial and industrial facilities, hospitals, schools and rest homes," he commented.

Inquest Today In Gun Death

SCOTT CITY--Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Tom Gilmore said this morning that a coroner's inquest will be held here tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the city hall into the Friday night shooting death of 23-year-old Carolyn Ann Miller of Illmo.

The woman was shot one time in the head. Her husband, Larry Ray Miller, admitted to authorities that he pulled the trigger.

Miller, who claims the shooting was accidental, said in a statement to Sheriff John Dennis Saturday that he arrived home from work Friday and asked his wife if she had cleaned his.22 caliber pistol. Miller said he then took the gun, held it about a foot away from his wife's head and pulled the trigger four times. Miller said when he pulled the trigger the fourth time the gun discharged, a bullet hitting his wife under the right ear.

Mrs. Miller was dead on arrival at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Miller's statement to Sheriff Dennis disclosed that he had consumed "three beers" before going home Friday.

Miller was released Saturday on a charge of investigation of murder but was arrested later on a charge of "exhibiting a dangerous and deadly weapon in a rude and threatening manner" involving another gun incident.

The arrest stemmed from a prior complaint by Michael Gentry of Scott City. Gentry said that Miller "pulled a gun" on him about a week ago. Miller was released on $5,000 bond.

Cable TV Service In April or May

Plans and construction are progressing on schedule for See-More Cable Television and the service should be made available to the public by late April or early May, Travis Garrett, manager, said.

Garrett said that all construction and wiring has been completed and the only thing that remains is to splice additional equipment to the support wires and hook up the homes. Garrett said that about 50 per cent of the wiring in Miner is completed and should be ready within a month.

Initially the cable station will provide stations from Cape Girardeau, Paducah, and Harrisburg, Ill. and Garrett said that channel 8, from Carbondale, Ill., and Channel 21 from Murray, Ky., educational stations also will be available.

Channel 8, Garrett said will provide a movie each night at 10 p.m.

Channel 29, also from Paducah, will be made available in the future. The programming of channel 29 is predominately movies.

Take $1,500 in Herbicides

KEWANEE— Nine cases of farm herbicides valued at $1,500 were reported stolen from a warehouse of Kewanee Grain Company over the weekend.

Entry was made by forcing open an east door. Deputy Sheriff Walter Ivy and the state patrol investigated.

1,000 Tires Stolen

ADVANCE--The highway patrol reported the theft of almost 1,000 tires taken from an aluminum Freuhauf 45-foot trailer, Saturday night, while the vehicle was parked at the Phillips 66 Station.

Robert N. Ford, Advance, told officers the trailer had been parked at the station while the cab of the truck was being repaired.

Missing were 830 passenger tires and 117 truck tires.

ROBERT NICHOLS, 52, St. Louis, passenger in this 1968 Ford was fatally injured when the vehicle struck another car on Interstate 55, one mile north of New Madrid.

Editor's Note:
John Roderick of The Associated Press is one of three American newsmen admitted to Communist China to cover the tour of the U.S. table tennis team. It is the first time such permission has been granted to a group of correspondents since the Communists came to power in 1949. Roderick, 56, was an AP correspondent in China in 1945-48 and has served in the Tokyo bureau since 1969.

PEKING (AP) — The warm welcome extended by the Chinese to the visiting U.S. table tennis team and three American newsmen admitted to china to cover their tour offers encouraging prospects for wider people-to-people contacts between the Chinese and the Americans.

The table tennis team is the first U.S. group of any kind invited to the Chinese mainland since the People's Republic was proclaimed in 1949.

Our news assignment is to cover the team. But the biggest story of all—China—is all around.

It is too soon to say that all the barriers which have kept Americans out of China and Chinese out of America for so many years are coming down. But a hole has been made in the once impenetrable wall.

Not that official relations have changed or are about to do so. The Vietnam war and U.S. backing of Chiang Kaishek bar the way to rapprochement. But the springlike warmth in U.S.-China contacts at this unofficial level cannot fail to melt some of the ice that has congealed in the long winter of hostility.

This is my first dispatch from China in 22 years. And Americans are welcome in the People's Republic—an event which would have seemed incredible only a few weeks ago.

I crossed the border from Hong Kong at 10:30 on a sunny Easter morning with John Rich and Jack Reynolds of the National Broadcasting Co. and two of their Japanese television crewmen, Hiromasa Yamanaka and Masaaki Shiihara.

With us were four other newsmen, John Saar, an Englishman, and Frank Fischbeck a West German, both of Time and Jose Schlesinger and Bob Whyte from the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

Only Rich and I had ever been to China, and we were here in the years before the Communist takeover.

From the border to Peking, it was all smiles and handshakes.

At Shumchun, across the border, we went through the complex of official buildings at an orderly pace, sipping tea, changing our money and lunching on duck, chicken, pork, squid and abalone washed down by Chinese beer.

We found ourselves in a world of lichee trees, banana groves and rice terraces as we traveled by train to Canton, South China's largest city.

Everywhere Chairman Mao Tse-tung beamed on us from billboards on the side of the track, statues inside the public buildings and from the lapels of countless, blue-jacketed Chinese.

Kwangchow, as the Communists call Canton, was a metropolis of 3 million glimpsed on the way to the airport. It was in holiday mood with thousands strolling the streets.

The cradle of Sun Yat Sen's revolution 50 years ago, it has a memorial to Sun on wide Chungshan Road, an institute for the peasant movement topped by a huge torch painted red and a vast People's Park containing six artificial lakes for boating, two swimming pools and numerous pavilions.

Rows of chien chen trees on Kwangshow's outskirts give the city a French provincial air, a Gallic impression heightened in the countryside by pine trees lining the highways.

Bicycles, an occasional pedicab—a three-wheeled bicycle taxi—and pedestrians filled the streets. There were a handful of cars and some crowded buses. Our car wove through the maze, the driver horn honking imperiously.

At the new airport built four years ago, we newsmen, four Western diplomats and a clutch of Chinese were the only passengers on the four-engine Ilyushin 18 held over from its usual 2 a.m. departure for us.

The last thing we saw when we took off at 5:15 p.m. was Mao smiling up at us from an enormous portrait in front of the airport building.

THE LETTER OF THE LAW

The harsh verdict in the case of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. is certain to be a matter of hot dispute for a long time. Equally noteworthy is the overwhelming public support for Lt. Calley, running at about 100 to 1. A few thoughts on the matter would appear to be in order.

First, it is abundantly clear that the six-man military jury, in reaching its verdict, adhered to a strict, relentless interpretation of "the letter of the law," which was their right and maybe even their duty. From ancient times, mankind has endeavored (without much success) to "civilize" warfare. The famous Dutch legal genius, Hugo Grotius (1583-1645) observed some 350 years ago that the laws of nations had, even at that time, "condemned" the use of assassins to kill an enemy. Yet the Communist aggressors in South Vietnam routinely hurl hand grenades into crowds of civilian shoppers, theatres and restaurants. Thousands of loyal government workers have been openly assassinated, kidnapped and tortured by the Vietcong. Clearly, the "laws of war" are not observed by the enemy. More than that, the "doves" in America make no demands that the perpetrators of these heinous crimes against civilians should be brought to justice.

The sense of outrage felt by the American people, it seems to us, stems directly from this blatant "double standard;" one rule for us, another for the Red invaders. Thus, Senator J. William Fulbright, powerful chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, sanctimoniously suggests that the "war crimes principles developed at Nuremberg" should be used against Presidents Johnson and Nixon, and against Generals Creighton W. Abrams and William C. Westmoreland. But there was no suggestion on his part that the same rules apply to Communist General Vo Giap, or Mao Tse Tung, or the Communist international rulers Kosygin and Brezhnev. As usual, his "rules" are applied selectively — against the United States, but never against the enemy.

Or what about Senator George McGovern, whose public utterances have been considered so favorably by the Communist enemy that they have been used consistently for the brainwashing, the mental torture of our American prisoners held by the Vietcong in North Vietnam? Is not the "letter of the law" to apply to those who give "aid and comfort" to the enemy? Campus "revolutionaries" openly flaunt the law while college administrators close their eyes or look the other way. Rapists and murderers and killers and thieves are routinely freed by permissive courts on the thinnest of legal technicalities. Since when are laws to be used leniently against some, but harshly against others? Little wonder the public outrage against the double standard used in judging the Calley case.

If the "letter of the law" of harsh retribution is to become the order of the day, then let us begin immediately; let the arrests be made now, across the board and without fear or favoritism. And let us start with the supporters and collaborators of our enemy; the Vietcong flag wavers, the bombers, the hate-America punks, and those who by word and deed give aid, support and comfort to the Red Fascists.

"Don't foreget to visit the mobile chest X-ray unit when it comes to Scott County next week," says your Christmas Seal Headquarters.

K. M. Streeter of Painton, reminds all persons 18 years of age and older that they should plan now to have their lungs X-rayed next week. Streeter is presently serving as a representative of Scott County on the TB and RD Advisory Council for District IV.

"It's good health insurance," Streeter announced today, "to stop by the unit and have your lungs checked. It only takes a few minutes and it's free to everyone 18 or over." He added that all evidence of lung pathology detected on the X-ray films is always reported together with the follow-up procedure. Scott County is also represented on the TB and RD Advisory Board by Thelma Buckthorpe, M.D. Administrator of the Scott County Health Department and Carl C. Popp, M.D. of Sikeston.

The schedule for the X-ray service is as follows: on Tuesday, April 20, the unit will be located on the Main street of Chaffee from 12 noon until 3 p.m.

Also on Tuesday, April 20, chest X-ray service will be available at Illmo-Scott City on the parking lot across from the IGA Store in Scott City from 4 p.m. until 7 p.m.

Wednesday, April 21, in Benton in front of the Health Department Building from 9 a.m. until 12 noon and also on Wednesday, April 21, the unit will locate in Sikeston on the Midtowner Village parking lot from 2 p.m. until 7 p.m.

On Thursday, April 22, the survey to check for lung pathology among Scott County residents will come to a close with the unit stationed in Sikeston at Malone Park from 12 noon until 6 p.m.

The Scott County Health Department is working in cooperation with the Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Society of St. Louis and Eastern Missouri in presenting this community chest X-ray survey. Funding for the service is through contributions to the on-going Christmas Seal campaign, whose headquarters are at 911 Locust street, St. Louis, 1, Missouri.

What makes you think it would be "bad" for me to have to make my way in competition with others?

If I work a little harder, or better, or get lucky, will I be able to keep any more of what I earn than the other fellow who didn't work as hard, or as well, or get as lucky?

This luck business is important: In your heart you know that in the game of life there has to be a jackpot, or the game won't be played very hard.

Where did you get the cockeyes idea that the man who earnes twice as much should be taxed four times as much?

Where did you get this idea that government can take care of everybody?

You know you can't get something for nothing; yet you pretend that people in Washington can give you things without first taking them away from you.

Don't try to blame the people in politics: They are simply doing what you want them to do.

Naturally they favor the things you favor because getting elected is their business.

They would change overnight if you would.

And don't get the idea that they respect you for being saps: Only a fool can be sold a ride on his own horse.

And that is exactly what is happening when you vote yourself "security" by giving the government more and more so the government can give you some of it back.

I'd rather risk having to stand on a bread line a few times than spending my life standing on line for government handouts.

OLD WOOD ROAD

An old wood road is a trail into history. Today's speeding traffic on arteries of cement and macadam carries a nation's business and its people. But away from the noise and the smell of acrid fumes, he who will can discover peaceful country roads that meander through small valleys and wind along shoulders of hillsides and low mountains.

Branching from the old dirt roads, one can find the wood roads that wander off through the trees. Along these roads men and boys hauled lumber less than a century ago.

After the pioneering days had passed, farmers found they could ship oak and chestnut, white pine and ash to city markets. It meant a cash product from the farms in a season when regular farm work was not pressing.

Now the old wood roads are dim trails that tell of an era gone. Shrubs and trees have come into the roads that were cleared for the hauling of logs on double-runner sleds. But there are places, especially in the sandy pinelands, where the trails are still distinct.

Old woods roads are not exciting. They don't require the adjectives that are common in a blatant, noisy era. The old roads have appeal to him who likes to get away from the cacophony of man's marketplace and the cages of glass and cement that make canyons of city streets.

In the quiet of the woodland, along an old road one may see a mother partridge leading her brood. The old roads among the trees are going back to nature, but for a long time they will tell a story to the perceptive.

Making predictions about future actions in the Missouri Legislature is always risky. However, at the moment it appears there are enough votes in the House to approve a 2-cent increase in the gasoline tax with no strings attached. If so, the final decision will be made by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes who has threatened to veto such a measure unless it were tied to a constitutional amendment calling for a state-wide road bond program to accelerate construction.

Early in the session the Senate authorized the 2-cent boost by a majority of 22 to 5. Obviously there are enough votes in the upper chamber to override an executive veto. The bill was then referred to the House ways and means committee and there was some speculation that it might die there. The governor has a close working relationship with the House leadership and it was predicted that his opposition to a 2-cent increase would be sufficient to bury the bill in committee. It didn'twork out that way.

Last week ways and means approved the tax hike, without a bond authorization, and sent the measure to the floor for debate. If the House goes along, that decision should not be regarded as a slap at the governor's leadership. His contention is that a tax increase would dissipate subsequent support for a bond program. We do not see it that way. Missouri desperately needs more revenue for highway construction and maintenance this year — not in the distant future.

If the boost is approved now, the higher rate would go into effect this fall and the highway department would be guaranteed more money before the end of 1971. If the hike is tied to the bonds, the election probably would not be held until next year. Then if the public happened to be in a negative mood and turned down the package, Missouri could be held back for years to come.

The logical way to solve this pressing problem would be to approve the tax now and then consider the bonds as a separate issue. The Senate and a House committe have adopted that approach. If the full House and Governor Hearnes can be persuaded to go along, Missouri will have the money to begin meeting its highway obligations this year.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Curbstone comments of a Pavement Plato:

It seems to me that spring is more oratorical than usual this year and that the present Easter season has had more than ordinary impact on people.

Perhaps this is because for some time now the American spirit has been flying at half staff. We have been sick in soul, ashamed at heart, confused of mind, distrustful of our national purposes.

We have bragged for a number of years now about our generosity as a people and our high moral goals, but today those brags sound tinny to our own ears. It is not necessary to spell out the reasons why we are not happy with ourselves. They are apparent to us all.

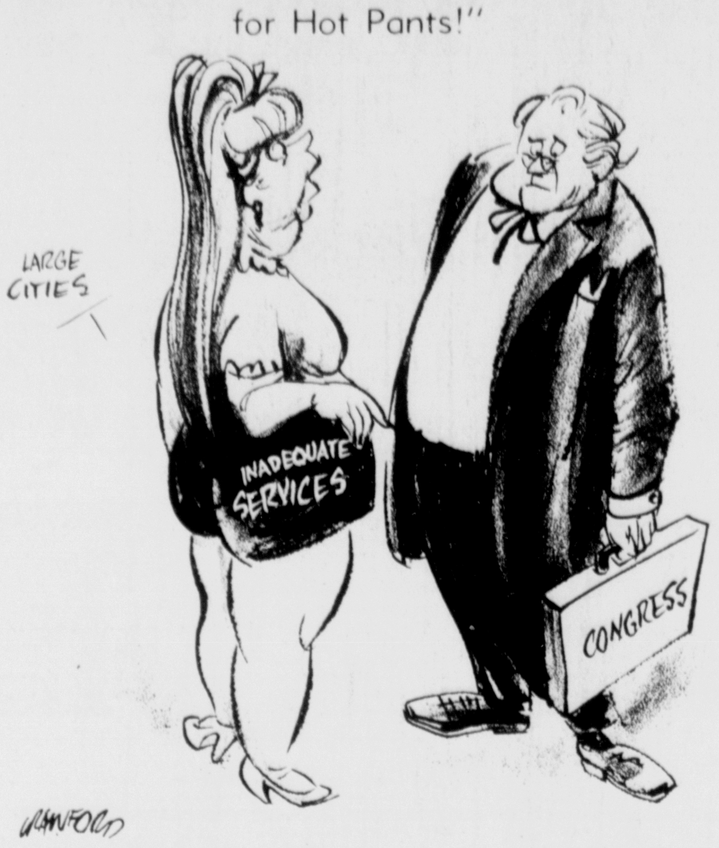

That is why, it seems to me, there was more warmth than usual this year in the traditional greeting, "Happy Easter!" In our mutual distress we have felt deeply the need of one another and the consolation provided by Jesus Christ's example that nobility of both dream and conduct are possible to man, no matter the price. We can be more than hypocritical.

Nature is ever at hand, too, to help us cure ourselves. Spring right now holds out the promise of regeneration, as did Jesus.

There has never been a lovelier spring. Each opening green bud is a pulpit preaching the veracity of renewal, that sadness will pass and gladness come again. Now is the time for us all to take a walk in the nearest woodland and share the enchantment of its vast rebirth and the faith and optimism implicit in birdsong.

There is hope for us yet. Much, much hope. If we can believe in the message given by growing trees, we can believe in ourselves as well. We still have another chance.

This is good news, says a University of Wisconsin home economist, becausyit will not only help keep the price of thread stable but will help conserve the nation's wood supplies.

Maybe so, but one suspects that not until the toothpick manufacturers cease their depredations will our forests really be safe.

Anyway, the question in the minds of millions of us kids is: Can you notch a plastic spool to make a decent Halloween window - rattler?

Did you know that one of the oldest crops in the United States is hops? Back in 1646 settlers in what was then New Netherlands planted hops because beer and other malt beverages couldn't be brewed without them.

We don't hear much about hops, perhaps because there are less than 300 producers today, and all are located in only four states — Idaho, Washington, Oregon, and California. But the current crop is expected to be about 40 to 45 million pounds, and over 21 million pounds of it will be exported.

A hop is something like a small pine cone except that it is yellow-green, and the petal - like scales feel loose and papery. There are three principal varieties — Clusters, Fuggles, and english. They grow on wire trellises, 16 to 22 feet high, and under favorable conditions have been known to grow six inches or more in 24 hours.

The early settlers had quite a good thing going for them with the hop crop. By 1808, they were selling more than 21 million pounds, about half of what is produced today. But in the 1920's the New York industry was almost entirely wiped out by a downy mildew. Hoeever, other areas took heed, and learned to contrl the disease so that crops could continue abundant in the Pacific Northwest

Hops are rather tricky to harvest. They're in their prime with maximum brewing value for only 5 to 10 days so that they must be harvested quickly. Then they are picked and cleaned, dried and cured with the moisture content reduced about 75 percent.

After they are dried in kilns heated to 150 degrees, the hops require 12 days to cool. When the curing process is completed, they are baled — about 200 pounds to the bale — and shipped to breweries.

Hops have four important properties which come into use at the brewery. The oil imparts a characteristic aroma. The bittering element and organic acid add to the pleasantly bitter taste, and the resin antiseptic property helps in preservation.

The brewer uses only a small quantity of hops, abouta quarter of a pound to a 31-gallon barrel. At that rate, the 44 million pounds of hops forecast for use in this country this year would make about 176 - million barrels of malt beverage.

CONTINUING ATTACKS ON THE MILITARY

A favorite target for attacks in the mass media is the U.S. military. Television networks, especially, often display anti-military propaganda in so-called "specials" and in their nightly news reports.

Any excess by our servicemen in Vietnam is widely publicized, while Viet Cong atrocities are studiously ignored. Defense spending is constantly attacked as needless and inflationary. Most recently the Pentagon was denounced on a network "documentary." Even patriotic citizens might begin to worry about the military if they are exposed to these attacks long enough.

No one claims that everyone connected with the military is perfect or makes no mistakes. No government department could make such a claim. But of all the departments in government, the one most important to our survival and most needing the support of our citizens is the military. Of all the expenditures by our government, those for national defense are the most justified.

The purpose of our armed forces is to protect our citizens and our country and to defend those in other countries who are our allies and victims of aggression by our enemies. Many other functions which our government has taken upon itself could be performed just as well or better by individuals or private organizations. But obviously only the national government can provide for national defense. Those who seek to undermine it weaken the morale of our sons in the service and undermine our entire nation.

While constructive criticism of the military, as of any other government department, should never be stifled, destructive and unfair criticism can only do harm. We should all give more support to those who defend our lives, our freedoms and our Republic USA. HLH

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — New evidence has come to light that the FBI is trafficking in private information about public figures.

A derogatory report on House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs, including the allegation that he drinks heavily, has been traced to FBI sources.

This was the inspiration, it has been suggested, for Deputy Attorney General Richard Kleindienst's crack on television that Boggs must have been either "sick or ... not in possession of his faculties" when he accused the FBI of tapping congressional phones.

Kleindienst told us he had heard the rumors about Boggs's drinking but not from the FBI. The only FBI report he had seen on Boggs, Kleindienst said, concerned the Congressman's alleged role in helping Baltimore contractor Victor Frenkil get the contract for constructing a House garage.

The Deputy Attorney General said he had reviewed this report about 18 months ago and had joined in the decision that "there was no evidence to warrant prosecution."

The FBI rundown on Boggs, according to a competent source who has seen it and is in a position to know its origin, is written on plain paper without any FBI identifying marks. In the past, we have seen similar anonymous reports that we knew came out of the FBI.

TITILLATING TIDBITS

It has been the FBI's practice to collect titillating tidbits about prominent people, which turn up in the course of other investigations.

The FBI learned from its wiretaps at the Soviet Embassy, for instance, that ex-Attorney General Ramsey Clark had telephoned Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin last December about possibly going to Russia to observe the trial of 12 Russian Jews who allegedly had plotted to hijack a plane to fly them to Israel.

J. Edgar Hoover immediately sent a secret message about Clark's plans, quoting a "highly reliable source," on the FBI teletype to the White House, Pentagon, State Department and Central Intelligence Agency.

Perhaps the most notorious FBI report that has come to our attention was a memo to ex-President Lyndon Johnson on the sex life of the late Dr. Martin Luther King. A White House aide showed us the FBI memo, dated Feb. 20, 1968.

It quoted a "confidential informant" who said Dr. King had been having an "illicit affair'with the "wife of a prominent Negro dentist in Los Angeles."

Continued the memo: "The source related an incident which occurred some time ago in a New York City hotel, where King was intoxicated at a small gathering. King threatened to leap from the 13th floor window of the hotel if this woman would not say she loved him."

The FBI, of course, has no business investigating King's sex life, Boggs's drinking habits, Clark's travel plans or the private lives of any other public figures.

PEANUT BUTTER CAPER

Hidden in secret Pentagon files, among incidents the Army has hushed up, is the story of the peanut butter caper.

It happened a year ago when Maj. Gen. Herron Maples was in charge of peanut butter matters for the Army in Europe.

He was determined to keep his favorite brand, Circus peanut butter, on commissary shelves. But he was overruled by a cost - conscious Pentagon which discovered Piknik peanut butter was cheaper.

(The cost overrun for he Circus brand, it was carefully calculated, came to 21 cents extra for a three -pound jar.)

Maples registered his compliance in a formal message that he sent to the Pentagon over the "front channel." But he put another secret message on the "back channel," which is reserved for general officers.

Only the most sensitive secrets are marked for the "eyes only" of Pentagon insiders. This was how Maples was hand - carried from the Pentagon communications center to the Army Support Services.

"I will withdraw agreement," the two-star peanut butter epicurean advised. Thus he defied Pentagon directive and continued to stock the more expensive peanut spread, keeping the record a deep military secret.

His "Eyes only" message, dated March 12, 1970, offered this addendum: "If after we have tried (other) peanut butter for a period and we see an impact on our sales on peanut butter Circus, we will then reconsider."

At 21 cents more per giant jar, Maples's manipulation has cost peanut butter eaters in the European Command thousands of dollars. The word reaching the Pentagon was that he acted upon the urging of food brokers handling the Circus brand.

Footnote: Maples also informed the Pentagon of his wife's feeling that "Formula 409" cleanser in the half-gallon size should be featured on commissary shelves. With disregard again for the Pentagon's expensive studies, he declared arbitrarily that "great saving to our customers" would result from stocking "Formula 409." We tried unsuccessfully to reach Maples by trans-Pacific phone in Vietnam where he is now handling home - cleanser and peanut - butter problems for Gen. Creighton Abrams.

Why No House Bugs? Congressional Offices Reported Infiltrated

WASHINGTON -- In the beginning let there be light. If the enraged Congressman Hale Boggs, who so passionately now flays FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, is devoutly anti-wiretap, he is a recent convert to the anti - bugging club. For many years now he has been a strong supporter of the tap, the bug and special surveillance .

It was he who introduced into the 1941 Congress a bill banning Communists, Fascists and German - American Bundists from trade unions.

It was this Louisiana congressman who voted enthusiastically for legalization of wiretapping by the FBI in sabotage and cases involving the national security. And again in 1954 he voted for legal wiretapping on court order.

The 57 -year-old representative did not then make any distinction -- nor has he until recently -- between a civilian and a congressman. Point then is, what makes members of the Congress immune from the wiretap?

There have been members of the Congress who had more than the usual number of glass -hoisting, nightclub relationships with the lineage of Al Capone. There have be me who were intricately interwoven with the Communist Party. There may be some who are in the draft card burning milieu. And here I differentiate those who are anti-war, or latter-day doves. I'm talking rather of the Communist Party's apparatus.

There have been those who were off -the -wall and constantly freaking out on society.

Invasion of the public's privacy is not the issue here. The invasion of congressmen's privacy is. Would it have been wrong to tap the office wire of former House Speaker John McCormack, which was used as a sort of bucket shop operation by a couple of fellows?

Incidentally, this sort of thing goes on a great deal of the time -- and has for a long time too. Back to the office of the late Vice President Henry Wallace.

And what of the U.S. senator whose aide has been accused of attempting to kill an indictment of a Wall Street theivery ring which included the extortionist and now- imprisoned Johnny (Dio) Dioguardi?

And what of New Jersey Congressman Cornelius Gallagher? Does he or does he not know Joe (Joe Bayonne) Zicarelli well, who according to the federal records was a captain in the Joe Bonanno operation? Joe Bayonne has gotten himself into several raps. Mr. Gallagher is an important member of Congress, third ranking member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Congressman Gallagher was one of 10 possible running mates considered by Lyndon Johnson in 1964. And when the president asked Mr. Hoover to come over and discuss Rep. Gallagher, the FBI chief went and voiced his disapproval. But there was no FBI tap in his dossier.

I do believe Mr. Hoover and Attorney General Mitchell when they say no congressman ever has been wired for sound, or bugged or put under surveillance.

Congressman Gallagher's alleged friendship with Zicarelli did not even tempt the FBI. It's just not done. John Edgar Hoover is too astute, and has too many enemies this open season, to commit political suicide by tapping, bugging or tailing a congressman.

Mr. Boggs used some semantic acid when he charged the FBI with using Gestapo tactics. Well, that's oratory. But why should tapping of the Congress be any more verboten than the tapping of others who might be involved in gambling, protection, or threatening the security of this nation?

There are 535 members in both houses. They've mostly come up through the precinct jungle. They have been wooed in many fashions -- some damned carnal -- by international operatives.

Yet in no one year, until the recent gambling jurisdiction given the Justice Dept. and the FBI, have there been more than 100 taps. During the late Robert Kennedy's term as Attorney General, he authorized between 80 and 90 taps annually.

It's all legal under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 and the new Organized Crime Control Act of 1970.

Yet J. Edgar Hoover on March 5, 1970 testified that: "Our investigative coverage is also enhanced through the limited and closely controlled use of telephone and microphone installations. Currently, we are operating 36 telephone surveillances and two microphone installations in bureau cases in the security field. All were authorized in advance and in writing by the Attorney General.

"We are also operating four telephone surveillances and one microphone surveillance in bureau cases in the organized crime field. These were installed under a court order obtained under provisions of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968."

In the ten months following Mr. Hoover's testimony there were about another 100 taps authorized -- because of the new gambling jurisdiction. But these have resulted in hundreds of arrests and many convictions of organized crime leaders.

Obviously modern crime needs modern counteraction. And what makes congressmen supermen? Why would the tapping of a House or Senate member "liquidate the Bill of Rights" as Mr. Boggs laments?

There is no second- class citizenship -- not even for those on the bottom of "The Hill."

Dexter and Howardville In MCB Competition

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri Community Betterment director, Everett M. Lee, has announced that Dexter and Howardville have entered the 1971 Missouri Community Betterment awards competition.

"The towns will be judged on community involvement and the degree of accomplishment made in one year on community improvement projects selected for competition," he said.

Communities entered in the awards program will be competing with towns of comparable size. A total of $10,500 in cash donated by businesses, utilities and professional groups will be awarded to towns under 10,000 in population. In the population group of over 10,000, the 1971 winners will receive achievement plaques.

The 1971 winners will be announced at the eighth annual Missouri Community Betterment conference held in October in Jefferson City.

More Men Than Women Bought Easter Hats

SAN DIEGO, Calif (AP) — The Easter bonnet boom in this city is at the counters of men's shops and the colors are vivid, say the fashion stores.

A downtown men's shop said it sold $1,000 worth of hats in less than an hour Friday. Salesgirl Joe Howze said avocado and suntan straw hats of sheared velvet and bowlers in sky blue, cherry blossom pink and king's gold were the most popular.

Robert Anderson Jr. said he purchased a pink plantation straw hat to go "with my metallic bronze jump suit and white tassle loafers."

One sales clerk said "the gals still come in, but mostly to help their husbands."

A store attributed the drop in sales of ladies' hats to wigs and fancy hair styles.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I resent your consistent portrayal of homosexuals as an immoral, antisocial, obnoxious segment of society. I especially take exception to the letter from the Arizona homosexual. Why it is you would not allow the words "kike" or "nigger" to get into print, yet you let the word "queer" appear in your column, even though it is offensive to 20 million Americans. (Kinsey's statistics). Furthermore, your conclusion that the straight student was approached often because he was "prettier than most guys" is a stereotypical fallacy -- pure fiction.

Why do you treat 10 per cent of your readership as though there is no good side to their life style? Your low opinion of homosexuals is apparent from the selection of the letters you choose to print. Get with it or give up. --- Member Of The National Gay Liberation Alliance

Dear Gay Lib: The letter below might be of interest to you since it deals with the same subject.

Dear Ann Landers: This is one of the sincerest thank -yous you'll ever receive. I've always believed that only a homosexual could understand what it is like to be persecuted by ignorant people, but you, Ann Landers, have displayed unusual understanding. As a 23-year-old homosexual, I can tell you it's a rough life to be rejected and humiliated, but for boys 15 and 16 it's pure hell.

I appreciate your compassion. You are one person who prints the truth about homosexuality. Please keep reminding your readers that the trouble with the world is not that some people make love differently but that they don't love at all. --- Love to you, Ann Landers. --- Evanston

Dear Evanston: Everyone likes to be appreciated. Thanks for writing.

An now, a word to Gay Lib who says I am misinformed. Sorry, you're wrong. It is no stereotypical fallacy that pretty males attract homosexuals. "Pink Tea Queens" (as they are called) are well aware of their girlish good looks and they use it to an advantage. This information comes to me from the homosexuals themselves and not from third-party researchers.

Dear Ann Landers: I am nearly 17 and have had this problem for over a year. Whenever I am asked for a date I get real excited about it and I look forward to having a good time. So what happens? About ten minutes before the guy shows up I get a stomach ache. By the time he arrives I feel rotten. I have these pains the whole evening and it's all I can do to force a smile and pretend I'm having fun. It kills me to see other girls laughing and enjoying themselves while I'm in pain --- wishing I was dead.

Please tell me how to get over this ridiculous thing. I am --- Sick of Gettin Sick

Dear S.O.G.S.: Go to a doctor and learn whether or not an organic problem is causing the pain. Chances are good that the trouble is not in your stomach but higher up ---like in your head.

People who are uptight, fearful and unsure of themselves often develop physical symptoms. Stomach aches and headaches are the most common. Hopefully the doctor will give you some medication or suggest counseling. Maybe both.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze And You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Housewife Spends Vacations on Safaris

TEANECK, N.J. (AP) — Joan Baron is a suburban housewife with a yen for excitement. So she spends her vacations with her family, hunting and photographing lions, leopards, cheetah and elephants in Africa.

Her safaris, booked through a safari company in Nairobi, have taken her to Kenya in 1967 and Tanzania last August. A third trip is being planned for the summer of 1972.

"We love the outdoors and wanted to get to Africa before the wildlife is gone," she said.

"We would wait on the hilltops in the darkness of the morning and watch as the sun broke over the vast escarpment of northern Kenya to ... reveal the haunting spectacle of nature," Mrs. Baron wrote in a catalogue accompanying a display of her color photographs at the Trans World Airlines Flight Center at Kennedy International Airport in New York.

The three traveled to the maountainous regions of northern Kenya, and to southern Kenya.

Dr. and Mrs. Baron were joined on the second trip by their four children, then aged 12 to 19 years, and two professional hunters, Sven Cedergren and Robin Boyd.

The second trip took them to southern Tanzania, near Zambia and the Congo, and then to the Serengeti region in northern Tanzania.

Oven-Fried Chicken with Nectarine Sauce

Rub chicken pieces with butter or margarine; crumble tarragon over. Place in shallow pan without rack and bake at 375 degrees for 1 hour, basting twice. Add wedges of juicy fresh nectarines to drippings in pan to bake for the last ten minutes. Just before serving, stir some dairy sour cream into pan drippings and serve as sauce for chicken.

Going Gourmet

Consumer taste levels are rising. Household help is becoming more scarce. As a result, elegant cooking and serving products are demanded items.

Serving and buffet products, along with electrical appliances, account for 40% of the sales volume in housewares.

Gourmet shops are becoming more important daily, many of them with libraries so women can browze through cookbooks as they contemplate their adventure into gourmet cookery.

SAVE MY FACE

AND SAVE MONEY, This week we are featuring "after Easter" specials — and if your bring my "face" with you, you will get an additional 10% off on sale or regular merchandise — and that, my friends, is called "saving face." The sale lasts only this week, so take advantage of the bargains.

In the springtime a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love. And a young girl thinks of the spring prom and a new formal. This year the look of formals have completely changed, and we have just received a new shipment of the "new looks" for this year's affair.

Also in the springtime, no matter what your age, you get that disease called "spring fever."

At ages 6 to 16 — you get spring fever and wonder if you can be excused from school because of it ....

At age 20 — you get spring fever and find you have the fire to conquer the world and will attempt it ....

At age 30 — you get spring fever and your dream is to build a better place for your family, and you strive toward that aim ....

At age 40 — you get spring fever and you are at that dangerous age of wondering whether the old saying "life begins at 40" is really true (take it from me, it can be true) ....

At age 50 — you get spring fever and realize what they meant by "life begins at 40". You are enjoying the reaps of your labor and have discovered that life can be like springtime ....

So when you get "spring fever" this year, take advantage of the feeling and do something with it!

Red Birds Split Pair, Royals Blast Oakland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals split an Easter Sunday doubleheader at home with the San Francisco Giants, winning the opener 4-2 and dropping the nightcap, 7-2, while the Kaneas City Royals were lambasting the Athletics in Oakland, 10-5.

Willie Mays sat out the first game but tripled and doubled for two runs to lead the Giants over the Cards in the second. Successive homers by Joe Torre and Jose Cardenal wiped out Juan Marichal's bid for a shutout in the sixth.

Bob Gibson pitched a six-hitter in the opener for his 191st career victory, shutting out the Giants until the eighth when pinch-hitter Goerge Foster and Bobby Bonds homered back-toback.

Ted Sizemore's two-run fifth against loser Rich Robertson.

Gibson, squaring his season record at 1-1, struck out three, walked none and worked out of the only other Giants threat by retiring Alan Gallagher on a ground ball with two on in the fourth.

Four straight San Francisco hits in the four-run third chased loser Reggie Cleveland of the Cards in the second game.

Little Freddie Patek rached base four times on two singles and two walks, stole a base and scored three times to lead the 15-hit Royals attack against four Oakland pitchers.

Kansas City rapped A's starter Jim Hunter for seven hits and five runs in less than two innings. Paul Schaal doubled and singled, Cookie Rojas had two singles and Bob Oliver homered.

The Royals scored four runs in the first on singles by Patek, Joe Keough, Lou Piniella, Ed Kirkpatrick and Rojas and a double by Schaal, with an error by center fielder Rick Monday.

The Athletics, trailing 8-1 until the fifth, pulled up to 8-5 in the sixth, but Bobby Knoop's pinch double drove in two more Royals runs in the seventh.

Al Fitzmorris was the winner on a four-hitter, including a pair of homers, a two-run blast by Dick Green in the fifth and a single in the second by Monday.

The Houston Astros pay the Cards a visit in St. Louis tonight, with Wade Blasingame, 1-0, going against Steve Carlton, 1,0.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Like the proverbial Hollywood starlet, Marty Pattin found the road to success in a drugstore and, as a result water is a popular drink in at least one Milwaukee household.

Pattin, a 5-foot-11, 180-pound right-hander, notched his second victory of the young season Sunday with a three-hit 3-0 blanking of the California Angels. That put the expansion Milwaukee Brewers atop the American League West with a 3-1 record.

After a 7-12 record and 5.60 earned run average with Milwaukee's Seattle predecessors in 1969, Pattin posted a 14-12 mark last season and lowered his ERA to 3.40. He credited a diet which requires at least eight glasses of water a day and helped him shed 15 pounds.

"My wife picked up this diet book at a drugstore," Pattin explained. "I guess they call it a water diet. You eat a lot of proteins and drink a lot of water. There is something about the water acting on the proteins to help keep the weight down. Anyhow, it seems to be working."

Elsewhere in the AL, Minnesota whipped the Chicago White Sox 6-0, Kansas City outslugged Oakland 10-5, Baltimore dropped its opener to Detroit 5-4 in 11 innings but won the nightcap 9-3, Cleveland trounced Boston 7-2 and the New York Yankees split with Washington, winning 1-0 and losing 4-3.

In the National League, it was the New York Mets 1, Cincinnati 0 in 11 innings; Atlanta 3, Pittsburgh 1; Houston 7, Chicago Cubs 4; San Diego 9, Los Angeles 7; Philadelphia 11, Montreal 4 and St. Louis 4, San Francisco 2 in the first game of a twin bill and San Francicco 7, St. Louis 2, in the nightcap.

Pattin got the only run he needed against California in the first inning when Dave May doubled off Tom Murphy and scored on a single by Andy Kosco. Singles by Ellie Rodriguez and Ted Kubiak wrapped around a wild pitch accounted for a run in the second and Bernie Smith homered in the eighth.

Jim Kaat, a good hitting pitcher, scattered 11 hits as the Twins blanked the White Sox. He also collected a single and double, drive in two runs and scored one while boosting his lifetime mark against Chicago to 26-9.

Kaat put the Twins ahead in the third when Jay Johnstone lost his fly ball in the sun and it fell for a double. Kaat scored on Rod Carew's single and Carew came around when Tony Oliva's wind-blown fly ball fell in left field for a single.

Kansas City erupted for four runs in the first inning and went on to pound four Oakland pitchers for 15 hits. Loser Jim Hunter was tagged for first-inning singles by Freddie Patek, Joe Keough, Lou Piniella, Ed Kirkpatrick and Cookie Rojas and Paul Schaal's double.

Just when was it beginning to look as though the Orioles might never lose a game, Bill Freehan's 11th-inning home run lowered the boom in the opener despite a homer, double and two singles by Brooks Robinson. The Birds then broke loose for five runs in the first two innings of the nightcap and coasted behind Dave McNally's seven-hit pitching.

Pitcher Alan Foster touched off a five-run rally with an eighth-inning double and Cleveland sent the Red Sox to their third straight defeat. Larry Brown was then hit by a pitch, Craig Nettles sacrificed and Vada Pinson's single scored Foster.

Bullets Wallop Knicks, 114-88

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was almost unbelievable what the Baltimore Bullets did to the New York Knicks.

Given up for dead by almost everyone after losing the first two games to the defending champion Knicks in their National Basketball Association playoff series, the injury-ridden Bullets executed an about-face Sunday and walloped the Knicks 114-88.

It was the worst drubbing the Knicks have absorbed since their 22-point licking, 135-113, by Los Angeles in last year's playoffs.

"If we play up to our potential with the players we have left we can still win," declared Baltimore coach Gene Shue after the Bullets had cut the Knicks' lead to 2-1 in the bestof-7 Eastern Conference final.

The Bullets, with stars Gus Johnson and Kevin Loughery still sidelined with leg injuries, can now even the series by winning the fourth game at Baltimore Wednesday night.

Form stood up in the NBA Western Conference final as the Milwaukee Bucks again trampled Los Angeles 91-73 for a 2-0 lead in their best-of-7 series.

The third game will be played Wednesday in Los Angeles.

Led by Earl Monroe's 31 points and Wes Unseld's 26 rebounds, the Bullets virtually blew the Knicks off the court in the second half at Baltimore.

Kentucky Derby Field Still Cloudy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With the 97th Kentucky Derby less than three weeks away, the prospects for its starting field still are fogged, but a pair of races in the coming week could clear the air a little.

The astern contingent of hopefuls for the May 1 Derby will contest the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct on Saturday while some of those already in Kentucky go in a prominent overnight Derby prep at Keeneland a day earlier.

Liley to be the favorite in the Wood is Calumet Farm's Eastern Fleet, winner of the Florida Derby in a clocking just twofifths of a second off the 14year-old track record.

Greentree Stable's Dynastic, and Fritz and Sechrest's Vegas Vic, newly arrived from the West Coast, will go in the Forerunner on Friday at Kenneland.

Either race could produce a Derby favorite, but so far nobody seems to want that role.

Limit To Reason, probably the second best colt of last season behind the now-injured Hoist The Flag, had his chance Saturday at Keeneland, when he faced what was considered a so-so field in a seven furlong test—and lost.

Toolin Around, meantime, brought thoughts of roses, juleps and the twin spires of Churchill Downs to his trainer, Dave Zakoor, who said, "I can still feel my heart beating. I've never had a horse like this before.

Zakoor, like some 26 other trainers of Derby eligibles, said he will have to watch his colt's development in the next 20 days to be sure, but if all goes well, he'll be in the Derby.

The upset for Brookmeade Stable's Limit To Reason was just a part of Saturday's turnabout in racing luck.

The Pruner, favored in the $106,100 Pan American Turf Handicap at Gulfstream Park, was back in the pack when Colonial Farms' Chompion set a track record of 2:25 3-5 for the 1½ miles.

Coody Masters Champ

Texas' handsome Charles Coody won the 1971 Masters Sunday and healed personal scars from his Augusta National collapse of 1969. He also destroyed Jack Nicklaus' dream of sweeping the Big Four championships this year.

"I was jittery from the first tee," admitted the man from Abilene. "Beating a great golfer like Nicklaus in the stretch is a big order for an average fellow like me."

Coody not only outgunned the sputtering Nicklaus, but withstood a stirring charge by 23year-old Californian John Miller, the nerveless kid who was six under par after 14 holes Sunday and leading the Masters by two shots.

Charlie rolled in birdies on the 15th and 16th holes and made clutch pars on the final two to finish with a two-underpar 70 and a 279 total. Miller finally melted and settled for a 68 and 281, the same as Nicklaus mustered with a closing 72.

"My goofup in 1969 ate up my inside for two years," Coody said. "That's all over now."

Robinson, Wills Tread Softly

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

MIAMI—(NEA)—Frank Robinson and Maury Wills, both prime prospects to become the first black major league manager, admit that they are now playing the white Establishment's game in pursuit of their goal.

Both said they are trying to avoid controversy and are bending over backwards to impress "them" (big league owners) with conformity to written and unwritten codes of conduct.

"I feel now," said Wills, Los Angeles Dodger shortstop, "that I'm being watched. So I try to set an example for my teammates. Usually it's in the little things. On the field, I try to help our younger players in where they should stand for certain batters. Off the field, well, I don't get involved with the pranks and jokes in the clubhouse, for example. 'No, no,' I'll say, 'I don't want any part of that.'"

Robinson, Baltimore outfielder, adds, "Say I pop a ball up in the infield. I run it out hard to first. I don't want to just trot. If someone's watching, I don't want him to say, 'If Robinson doesn't run it out, then how can he expect his players to?'

"And I don't sulk. I try to set an example, too. If I strike out to end an inning, for example, I don't go out to the outfield with my head down. And when I'm in right field, Paul Blair in center and Davey Johnson at second often check with me to see where they should play a batter."

Though neither the Dodgers or Orioles have team captains, Robinson and Wills are considered the "unofficial captains."

Both wear their hair modishly long, but not in "nine-mile wide" Afros, as Robinson phrased it. Neither sports long sideburns or facial hair, anathema to the traditional conservative-minded owner.

Both try to toe the line. Curfew for them means a strict deadline, though once both were rather cavalier about it. A few years ago Wills, after a game in St. Louis in September in the heat of the pennant race, went to Gaslight Square and played his banjo in a night club into the small hours. He missed curfew by about an hour. It did not please manager Walt Alston. But Wills played outstanding ball and the Dodgers swept the series and went on to win the pennant.

Later, when Wills was with Pittsburgh, manager Harry Walker fined him $300 one night for missing curfew by half-an-hour, then $400 the next night for again coming in 30 minutes late.

Wills doubts he would chance that notoriety today. Robinson said that he is especially careful just how and where he spends his off-hours. And, of course, he is no longer the "callow" youth whose arrest for carrying a concealed weapon caused him a dreary press when he played for Cincinnati years ago.

They step gingerly so as not to tread on the toes of the Establishment, which has in the past often played a game of musical chairs by hiring managers who have shuffled from one team to another.

"I don't want to sound bitter," said Wills, carefully. "But I do think it is time for some new faces and new ideas." He added, "I'm not arrogant, but I always felt I could do an outstanding job as manager."

Maury Wills Frank Robinson

Some whites, in this age of Muhammad Ali, are often repelled by a black man's "arrogance." Quiet confidence, though, is to be respected, in their judgment.

Robinson does not believe that this new self-conciousness has hurt his play. Wills, though, thinks it has to have some effect.

"One little thing was my way of gearing myself up for a game," he said. "I never wanted to talk to reporters an hour before a game. I would get very detached from the outside world." Now, though, he tries to cooperate with the press at all times.

This attitude is reminiscent to a degree of Jackie Robinson's deportment when he was the first and only black man playing in the big leagues. He rocked no boats until he and other blacks had become established players.

Robinson and Wills have both managed winter league teams successfully. Robinson, for the past three off-seasons, has managed Santurce in the Puerto Rican League to one pennant and one championship. Wills, in his first attempt, managed Hermosillo to a Mexican League pennant.

Neither is ready to retire as an active player. Robinson, 35, batted .306 for the World Champion Orioles. Wills, 38, hit .270 and stole 28 bases, despite torn ligaments in his left foot suffered early in the season. He believes he can steal 50 bases "easily" in 1971.

Both said they would like to get a chance to manage soon, though they know it would probably not be with their present teams. Earl Weaver of Baltimore and Alston seem firmly planted in those jobs.

Missouri Heads Big Eight Standings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri, unbeaten in three conference games, was on top the Big Eight heap after the first full week of baseball.

The Tigers whipped winless Kansas 7-5 Saturday and swept the weekend series. Tommy Nunn's run-scoring single in the eighth snapped a 5-5 tie for the victory.

Colorado beat Nebraska 4-1 Saturday to take that weekend series two games to one and post a 5-1 conference record behind Missouri. Home runs by Tim Evans and Doug Clark counted for the Buffs.

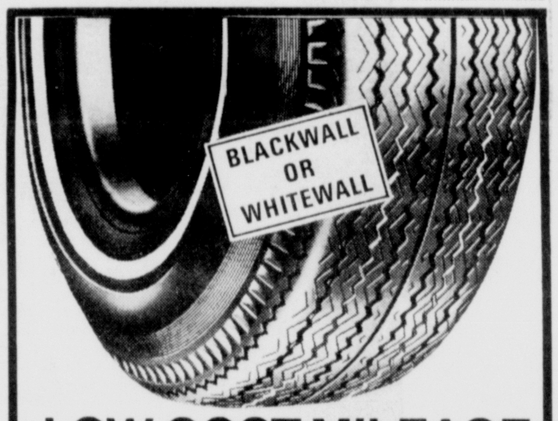

Oklahoma dropped a 4-2 decision to Oklahoma State Saturday, but carried the three-game weekend set by sweeping Friday's doubleheader from the Cowboys. The Sooners were third in Big Eight standings at 2-1. Oklahoma State was fourth at 5-4.

Kansas State followed in fifth place at 4-5 after picking up a 7-5 decision Saturday from Iowa State Cyclones hurler Doug Parsons hit K-State's Jay Parker with a pitched ball to walk in the winning run with the bases loaded in the eighth. The two teams split a Friday doubleheader.

The Cyclones and the Huskers are tied at sixth with identical 1-2 records, and the Jayhawks have yet to win a Big Eight game in six starts.

1971 State Manual To Honor Women

JEFFERSON CITY — James C. Kirkpatrick, the jolly Irishman who turned Missouri's Blue Book to — what else? — green, plans to give a boost to women's lib in the forthcoming edition.

A potted shamrock rested on the corner of the secretary of state's desk, along with other Irish memorabilia about his office, as he discussed the state's election laws and the Official Missouri State Manual, now the Green Book.

He was quick to note that his visitor wore a green shirt as he pointed to a smidgen of green in his own tie, a color that has earned him the nickname "The Jolly Green Giant" from some of his Jefferson City friends.

Ever gallant with the ladies, the secretary recalled that this is Missouri's sesquicentennial year and he thinks it is about time some attention is paid to them on an official basis.

Consequently, he said, the theme of the next issue of the Green Book will be "The Role of Women in Missouri."

"This has never been done by the state and I think it is about time we recognized them."

This year's manual is due out in October, one month earlier than the last book, his third since taking office. Kirkpatrick noted that it formerly was the custom to issue the book in March of the second year after elections. He has been able to advance the release date ahead now by five months, with this fall's the earliest ever issued.

"We have asked the artist and designer to give us the best and most beautiful book they can produce," he said.

One of the major editorial beneiftis of the new book, the secretary said, will be the updating of salaries of state employes and officials.

Heretofore, he explained, each department had reported its salaries. This resulted in some figures that were somewhat less than accurate.

"This year we are having the budget and comptroller's offices give us a computer printout of every salary. When we let the contract we can give them all of the salaries at one time up to the last minute, and it will be accurate."

One of the major problems of putting out a state manual is the size. If everything were used that the many departments and officials want used, the book would be so huge it would be filled with trivia and details to the point of uselessness.

"We have asked every department to reduce the amount of material so we can keep the book the same size," Secretary Kirkpatrick said. The 1967-68 volume was reduced by 252 pages by simply eliminating sugh things as Mo. after each town name, by careful editing and removal of material that was not of vital importance, he explained.

Growth of the state's many departments has put the book back to its larger size, so those in charge of the manual are constantly revising and working to keep it under control, the secretary of state said.

But the Green Book is only one of the many responsibilities of the secretary of state. He is charged with safekeeping of all public records, oaths of offices, preparation of commissions of office, early land records, corporation administration, administration of the securities act, handling of the Uniform Commercial Code, records management and state archives.

Most Missourians, however, recognize him through elections and filings for office. The secretary of state is the chief election official of the state, and it is in this connection that Kirkpatrick has particularly made his mark.

It was he who initiated long-needed election reforms in Missouri, urging the Legislature to revise the election laws, make them more responsive and eliminate much of the doubletalk in the statutes.

"If there is one action that makes it all worthwhile for what we have done up to date," he said, "it is the counting of all election ballots at one time."

Before he pushed for election law reforms, absentee ballots were counted later in election week and at each election many contests were undecided until as late as Saturday after a Tuesday election.

"However," the secretary of state continued, "I am disappointed we haven't been able to do more." Many of the reforms he suggested and has urged be adopted have not been passed by the Legislature.

It is important, Secretary Kirkpatrick said, that the laws be updated and the conflicts which still exist be removed from the election statutes. "They need to be made more understandable and they need to be consolidated."

He urged the appointment of a revision commission to make a thorough study of the election laws. The commission should have a paid staff to go through the laws and come up with a recodification recommendation that would eliminate the contradictions and put the laws together in unified form, he said.

Such a procedure was followed several years ago with the education laws, the secretary recalled, but it has never been done with election laws. "They've been added to and amended until they are a patchwork quilt."

In addition, he continued, "Missouri needs statewide registration." This now is on a local option basis.

Kirkpatrick said 32 out of 114 counties now have registration, with Iron, St. Francois and Dunklin adopting it in the past year. Eleven others have partial registration, as the City of Cape Girardeau did a few years ago until it was adopted on a countywide basis.

Much of the opposition, he said, comes from smaller counties which say they "can't afford it." But, he noted, Worth County, the smallest in Missouri with 4,000 population, has adopted it and "if they can pay for it, certainly other counties can."

Statewide registration has been recommended the past two sessions of the Legislature by the Election Study Commission, Kirkpatrick said. Last session it passed in the House, but was killed when Sen. Noel Cox, R-29th District, amended it to require the state to pay for those counties which said they could not pay the cost. "This was the kiss of death," the secretary said.

This year there has been a switch in procedure. The measure has been introduced in the Senate and the Election Laws subcommittee has reported it out with the recommendation, "Do pass." It now is on the Senate calendar.

"From the standpoint of orderly elections," the secretary of state said, "It is a must."

8 to Attend FHA Meeting

Representatives from Sikeston will attend a statewide meeting of employes of the Farmers Home Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture in St. Louis April 21-23.

Attending will be Harry Littleton, district supervisor; Bobby Hicks county supervisor; Charles Lindley, assistant county supervisor; Sherman Hill, construction inspector; Mary Jo Anderson, assistant county supervisor (home) Elvira Metz, county office clerk; Alice Dawes, assistant county office clerk; and Catherine Kem, assistant county office clerk.

Sees Need For Techniques To Expand Mind

THE SHAPE OF MINDS TO COME. By John G. Taylor. Weybright and Talley. $6.95.

Taylor is discussing in this book what he calls the mental revolution, as distinguished from the mechanical revolution which has had so much effect on man's life in the last 300 years. His main point is that the revolution of the mind must be speeded up quickly before civilization destroys itself.

His procedure is to comb through hundreds of research reports. His background is that of a physicist, but he discusses a great many medical, surgical, physiological and psychological matters.

There are chapters on the prospect for extending man's intelligence and memory, for expanding the consciousness, for controlling emotions. Others are on sleep, drugs and such paranormal psychic phenomena as telepathy and clairvoyance.

One of Taylor's principal themes is that consciousness seems to be dependent upon electrical and chemical processes within the brain. That leads him to the proposition that there may be no such thing as free will, one of the keystones to moral, political and religious institutions of the past and present.

Taylor presents some awesome possibilities for the improvement of the human mind in the next few decades, but these possibilities also involve some frightening problems. Some readers may question part of the author's vision of the future, but there is no doubt that he has written a provocative book.

Conference At Missouri School for Blind

ST. LOUIS — A conference for parents of visually handicapped children who will be considered for enrollment in Sept. 1971, will be held at the Missouri School for the Blind, 3815 Magnolia, April 26-27.

Children must be five years or older by Oct. 1, 1971, to be considered for enrollment.

Parents and their visually handicapped children are invited to spend the two days to get acquainted with the school's staff and education program. School will be in session, and classes may be observed. General physical and eye examinations will be given, and the school readiness of each child will be evaluated.

The children may go to supervised play areas during several periods of the two days. Older students may visit classes. Registration should be in advance. There is no charge for the conference, and visitors from out of town are invited to stay overnight at the school. Meals will be provided at the school for all persons attending the conference.

For more information and registration material, parents or interested parties may write or call the Missouri School for the Blind, 3815 Magnolia, St. Louis, Missouri, Telephone 776-4320.

The Missouri School for the Blind is a state operated school which offers a regular educational program from kindergarten through high school. Instruction is offered in both braille and large print. Students may transfer from the public schools to the School for the Blind, and they may also return to the public schools if they are able to compete successfully with normally sighted students. Boarding facilities are available for out-of-town students.

The costs to the parents are transportation, clothing, medical needs, and personal needs and allowances.

Paid any drug bills lately?

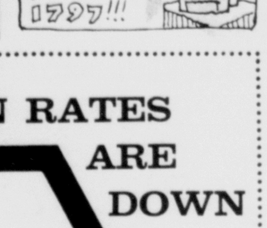

If you have you are already well aware of the high cost of modern medicine.

If you haven't, consider yourself lucky. But don't press your luck. Doctor and drug bills are continuing to rise. And you or a member of your family could be stuck with them overnight.

I can help you select a Metropolitan Life plan that will help pay for your doctor and drug bills. Doesn't it make sense to call me for detail?

Israeli Indecision Barrier to Peace

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The major immediate obstacle to a Mideast settlement is the inability of the Israeli government to agree within itself on what it would settle for.

And until the Israelis do reach some consensus on basics, there can be no meaningful peace talks with Egypt.

These U.S. officials believe the Israeli have become so inured to Arab hard-line extremism that when Egypt's Anwar Sadat came up with extremely reasonable proposals, the Israeli found they had no contingency plans for such a situation.

The hawks and doves in the Israeli cabinet are now so divided it is impossible for our top men to get a reasonable fix from the Israeli government, even in confidence, on what it wants or for what it would consider settling. High Israeli officials, who have in the past talked very frankly indeed to their American counterparts in private, now talk in evasive riddles.

But the time to act is now. Factors in the Arab world which have been adverse to a decision for years, now seem to be under control, at least temporarily.

- Sadat has wide backing among Egyptian intellectuals, government officials, businessmen, students, and even in the military, in his moves for peace.

The Egyptians in almost all circles are tired of this war and want peace so that they can go about their business. They see little value in prolonging a conflict with Israel which threatens to go on endlessly to no purpose and which would, in any event, bring them little, even if Egypt won.

- Sadat, if sources close to the White House are correct, badly wants to resume diplomatic relations with the United States and to build up a close, friendly relationship.

- Sadat, himself, high U.S. officials say, is a reasonable, intelligent and ingenious man who means business. (He is, of course, primarily concerned for the interests of his own country and not adverse, in his country's interest, to playing the Soviet Union and the United States off against each other.)

But time will not wait.

Sadat does not have Abdel Nasser's powerful grip on the government and the army. He has powerful detractors in the military—men not satisfied with moderate solutions. These officers are lying low now. But unless Sadat is able to show results in a reasonable time, the extremists could take over. It can be said there is some consternation at the White House that now, when time is of the essence, the Israeli turn indecisive.

ZEN MACROBIOTIC COOKING ORIENTAL AND TRADITIONAL RECIPES

(Avon W224/$1.25%224 pp.)

"From foods we are given life, and in the skillfull joining and balancing of foods are we given the secret of life."

George Ohsawa

Use only subtle spices
Eliminate coffee
Avoid any vegetable or fruit out of season
Eliminate potatoes, tomatoes and eggplant from your diet.
Avoid drinking while you eat

These are only a few of the principles set forth by Michel Abehsera in his complete introduction to ZEN MACROBIOTIC COOKING.

Going beyond the limits of ordinary cookbooks, ZEN MACROBIOTIC COOKING introduces the newcomer to the Zen Macrobiotic way of life, an ancient regimen relying on the selection and preparation of food for longevity and rejuvenation.

New Programs by Legislature Criticized

JEFFERSON CITY— Thirty-six new boards, commissions and other agencies would be created by bills pending in the legislature, Missouri Public Expenditure Survey reported today.

It urged restraint by the legislature in adding more agencies to the state government's organizational structure which it described as an unmanageable hodgepodge.

New agencies being proposed, the Survey said, range from a board of environmental sanitarians to a division of highway safety, and include: 15 boards, 12 commissions, two divisions, three agencies, one bureau, one authority and two councils.

Where new services or functions are found necessary, the Survey said, they should be assigned to existing agencies wherever possible.

The Survey noted that the state's organizational structure now consists of more than 110 separate agencies. They have been placed in the structure, it said, with little regard for logical location or overall efficiency of state government More lines of authority run directly between the governor and agencies than any executive could encompass in his span of control, the Survey added. It said some departments are little more than loose federations of agencies, and numerous agencies are not contained in any department.

To streamline the state's structure, the Survey noted, the legislature created a bi-partisan State Reorganization Commission, now engaged in a two-year study to develop a simpler, more orderly structure.

Country and Western Music Festival in June

GOLDEN POND, KY. — The Murray Art Guild will sponsor a Jackson Purchase County and Western Jubilee, June 26 and 27, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Conservation Education Center in Land Between the Lakes. The musical program will be a part of the Western Kentucky Arts and Crafts Festival that will be held near Center Station.

Auditions and a program planning session will be held Saturday afternoon, May 1, at 3 p.m. in the recital hall, Fine Arts Building, Murray State University. Old-time fiddlers, banjo pickers, guitar players, folk singers, and other performers in the country and western field are welcome. A self-addressed, stamped envelope must accompnay each request for an audition.

Any performer or musical group may obtain an application for audition from Chuck's Music Center, 1411 Main Street, Murray, Kentucky, or write to L. N. Clark, Box 1133, Murray State University, Murray, Kentucky 42071.

Arts Festival At Land Between Lakes

GOLDEN POND, Ky. — The Murray Art Guild will sponsor a second annual Western Kentucky arts and crafts festival in Land Between the Lakes June 26-27. Land Between the Lakes is TVA's big outdoor recreation area between Kentucky Lake and Lake Barkley in western Kentucky and Tennessee.

"We are announcing our festival early in order to give artists and craftsmen ample opprotunity to prepare their exhibits," said Mrs. Susanne Doyle, Chairman of the gala event."We hope that Kentucky artists and craftsmen as well as those from surrounding states will participate in this year's festival," she said.

Last year approximately 5,000 people viewed the work of the more than 50 artists and craftsmen who exhibited in the Conservation Education Center of Land Between the Lakes. Some of the festival participants came from as far away as Nashville and Memphis.

Only orginal work may be exhibited at the festival. No manufactured items such as those articles made from molds or kits will be accepted. Paintings, ceramics, leathercraft, wood carvings, needlework, weaving, and jewelry are among the different items that may be exhibited. A special attraction at this year's festival will be the Jackson Purchase Country-Western Jubilee under the direction of Mr. L. N. Clark, Murray State University. Details on the musical program will be announced at a later date. Those wishing to exhibit in the Arts and Crafts Festival should contact Mrs. Barbara Harrell, Route 1, Box 511, Murray, Kentucky 42071, phone area code 502, 753-8555. Mrs. Harrell will provide detailed information on the festival.

ALLOTMENT CUTBACK FORCES LAYOFF OF STATE EMPLOYES

JEFFERSON CITY — State agencies began planning employe layoffs and other cost cuttings steps last week in response to a 15 per cent reduction of their fourth quarter allotment checks.

Mental Health Director Dr. George Ulett announced plans to lay off 2,200 of his 9,000 employes by April 15. Besides the layoffs, Ulett said, many mental hospital patients will have to be discharged to the custody of their relatives. Admissions to mental hospitals will be sharply reduced and limited to only the most acutely ill.

Division of Insurance superintendent William Y. McCaskill wiped out scheduled insurance license examinations in four cities for April, May and June.

Other serious cuts in services were being considered at the University of Missouri, the state colleges, and primary and secondary schools.

The allotment cutbacks were ordered by State Comptroller John C. Vaughn, who says the state will fall some $20 million short of total revenue anticipated for the year ending June 30 unless buying trends pick up.

Meanwhile, the state legislature, in recess for its annual Easter break, has made little headway on major tax measures to finance state government next year.

Although the House has approved an $80 million extension to the one-year income tax hike approved in December, the Senate is evenly split between sales and income measures.

Senators last week rejected, on a 16-16 vote, a one-year income tax extension proposed by Sen. Maurice Schechter (D-Creve Coeur).

Schechter's bill, which included reform provisions to allow Missouri tax laws to more nearly fit federal laws, was severely amended before its eventual defeat.

Proponents of a one-cent tax increase played a major role in beating down the income tax measure, but they were not able to agree on what type of sales tax should be approved.

Sen. Omar (Avery (D-Troy), sponsor of the sales tax hike, originally wanted a one-cent hike with half of the $120 million per year additional income earmarked for capital improvements during the next three years. But Avery has several times had to lay the bill over and come in with a new version after various exemptions and credits were added during floor action.

Avery says he'll try again with a compromise bill after the Easter break. That bill will include a one-half cent sales tax increase and produce about $55 million in revenue, he said.

Even if the compromise measure passes, it will not meet the full revenue needs of the state during 1971-72. Avery readily admits that fact and says he would prefer to pass a sales tax hike and then reconsider the income tax idea for additional revenue.

And any revenue measure also would have to be approved by the House. The House is insisting on the income tax and recent difficulties on emergency appropriations indicate the two champers may have trouble agreeing on a final answer.

THERE'S FREE WATER UNDER THE GROUND

Are you tired of lawn-sprinkling restrictions and other water shortage problems? Of a heavy chlorine taste in your drinking glass? Of increased water bills?

If you are, consider having you own well and automatic electric water system. With it you can have all the water you want, and it will taste better than "city" water. Once the system is installed, you get free water. The only cost will be the few pennies it takes to run the electric motor. According to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau water from a well cost about 5 cents per thousand gallons, less than half of what you pay for city water.

The modern water system is a far cry from the old-fashioned dug well and hand pump. It consists of a well that's only a few inches in diameter, an electric pump, a tank to hold the water and automatc controls tc turn the pump on and off when the water in the tank reaches a predetermined level.

Over 950,000 electric water systems are installed each year. A recent survey shows that the overwhelming majority of families that have their own systems wouldn't trade them for city water.

If you'd like more information about having your own water system, send 25 cents in coint to Dept. P, Water Systems Council, 221 North LaSalled Street, Chicago, Ill. 60601. As for "Free Water: A Guide to Private Wells and Water Systems."

Hanoi On The Ropes Once Again

ART BUCHWALD
In The Commercial Appeal

WASHINGTON — When ever something new happens in the war in Indochina, I always seek out my dear friend Joseph Wallstop, the dean of the hawk columnists.

Last fall, as the war was winding down, Joe had become more and more depressed, so I didn't know what mood I'd find him in. Happily, when I went down to his war room located in the basement of his house, I found him dancing a jig.

"They've finally listened to me," Joe said gleefully.

"I've wanted to invade Laos for four years.

"That's wonderful, Joe," I said. "It must be great to see a dream come true."

"I didn't think President Nixon had the guts," Joe said. "But, thank God, he has finally bought my plan. Hanoi will be on the ropes in a matter of weeks."

"I thought you told everyone Hanoi was on the ropes after the Tet offensive."

"They were on the ropes," Joe said. "But they didn't know it. I still maintain the Tet offensive was the biggest allied victory of the war."

"Bigger than the invasion of Cambodia?" I said.

"Cambodia was different. In Cambodia I wiped out all the Communist sanctuaries that were supplying the Reds in South Vietnam."

"But if you wiped out all the Communist sanctuaries, why did you have to go into Laos?"

"Because, you idiot, Hanoi is hurting, so they're sending everything down the Ho Chi Minh Trail. Once I interdict the Ho Chi Minh Trail, I'll have the Commies on the ropes again."

He put on his campaign hat and said: "This is what I want to do: I want to bomb everything in Cambodia and Laos. This may force Hanoi to send their stuff through Thailand."

"Why, it's the old interdiction play," I said.

"Exactly. This will give me an excuse to invade Thailand. Once I'm in Thailand I'll give General Abrams time to shape up the South Vietnamese army so they can invade North Vietnam."

"You're going to invade North Vietnam?"

"What choice do I have?" Joe replied. "Once I clean out the sanctuaries in North Vietnam, Hanoi will be on the ropes."

"So they'll sue for peace?" I said excitedly.

"No, they won't," he said disgustedly. "They'll ask the Chinese to intervene."

"Joe," I said nevrously, "you're not thinking of sending the South Vietnamese into China?"

"Why not?" said Joe. "That's where all the supplies are coming from."

By DAVID LAWRENCE

The preoccupation of the United States with its own domestic troubles and with an expensive war in Vietnam has diverted our attention from what has been happening in Central and South America, where relations with the U. S. are deteriorating seriously and the Communists are making new gains.

After years of development, the Latin-American countries have made some progress toward taking care of their expanding populations. Now, however, there is a mounting hostility against foreign capital and a growing assumption that the nationalizing of basic industries will rebound to a country's economic advantage.

But this assumption rests on shaky premises. Businessmen in other parts of the world are not going to invest in areas where there is a threat of expropriation of their property at any time by regimes turning to socialization. The risks are too great. Moreover, none of the governments has available the vast amount of capital that is necessary to develop the industries which can produce a large output for export and bring in substantial revenues.

The phenomenon of rising nationalism throughout Latin America is opening the way for Communists to move in. New Soviet embassies are springing up in various capitals, bringing in a horde of propagandists and subversive agents along with the diplomats. Where U. S. aid is slowed or halted to nations at loggerheads with Washington over expropriation without fair compensation or over fishing rights for our tuna boats, the Reds are there to offer trade agreements or technical assistance.

As country after country nationalized major industries — oil, copper, electric power — and expels foreign interests, the Communists are busily jockeying for positions of power. They undoubtedly believe thay can eventually gain complete control of Latin American governments.

The problems are not confined to industrial production. The Communists are involved in organizing workers, including those on farms, and in some cases dominate the labor movement.

Communist agents are being trained in Cuba by Castro's regime, and they are responsible for many of the organizing activities being carried on by Latin Americans in their respective countries. The object, of course, is to promote Communism in political parties and ultimately give Moscow a foothold on the mainland.

Some analysts believe that much of the terrorism in Latin America — such as the kidnapping of diplomats of the United States and other Western nations — is related to Soviet plotting. There is a similarity in the way the terrorists operate everywhere. Also, it is to be noted that kidnappings are clearly intended to emphasize the weakness of the governments of Latin America and especially their inability to maintain order.

Already, leftwing threats to several governments in South America have cause three out of every four people on the continent to come under military rule. One gloomy prediction is that the day is not far off when everybody in that area may be under some form of totalitarianism — military or Communist.

Certainly the future is not bright for Latin America. This is due almost entirely to the fact that economic and social questions have not been given the consideration necessary to bring about real improvement in most countries. The only way the South-American nations will emerge from their present plight, in the opinion of many observers, is through the cooperation of the major powers of the world and particularly of the neighbor to the North who has befriended them over the years.

The United States, through the Alliance for Progress, started an ambitious program of financial and technical aid for Latin America but has not been able to keep it up. The Latin Americans are disappointed. They expected continuous and massive help.

The Nixon Administration has been following a policy toward Latin America known as the "low profile." This plan was intended to reduce friction between us and other nations of the hemisphere by removing the United States from a position of prominence in the affairs of the region. The theory was that this would spur self-help efforts among the Latin-American countries and cause them to regard us more as a partner than as the dominant power.

Unfortunately, the "Low Profile" policy is not working out quite that way. Many Latin Americans are said to interpret Washington's new approach as meaning that North Americans do not care what happens in the South. A coolness and resentment have developed. The leaders of the Communist worldgive every indication of attempting to turn this to their own advantage.

A constructive program laid down by our Government would have a far-reaching effect at this critical time. The opportunity is at hand to prevent Moscow and its allies from driving a wedge into Pan-American relations and crumbling a hemisphere.

U.S. Faces A Speaker Famine

Art Buchwald in The Commercial Appeal

WASHINGTON-- My friend S. J. Michelson, a registered ghost writer who works out of New York, has just added a new terror to those that have been predicted for the 1980s. S. J. predicts that in 10 years from now there will be a famine in speakers the likes of which the United States has never seen.

S. J. told me: "This country is using up rhetoric twice as fast as it can be reproduced, and if we keep wasting our speakers as we are doing now, we could find ourselves speechless by 1985."

Citing scientific data, S. J. said, "There were 11,198 prepared and extemporaneous speeches delivered last year in the city of New York not counting TV appearances by Mayor John Lindsay.

"Ten years ago there were only 4,506. By 1980 the demand for speeches by Rotary Clubs alone will be 23,987. Even with a new crop of politicians, radical students and Women's Lib activists, it will be impossible to supply one-quarter of the requests for speakers in 10 years from now."

I asked S.J. how he explained the escalating demand for speakers.

"This is a country that thrives on meetings. Three Americans can't have breakfast, lunch or dinner together without booking a speaker to address them. We are holding more conventions, more protest meetings and more fund-raising events than any time in our history. People have no solutions to any of the problems we face so they demand supposed experts to solve their problems for them.

"Unfortunately the more complicated our problems become, the more meetings we hold and the less experts we have to go around.

"For example, in any given night in this country there are 5,679 Republican fund-raising dinners going on. At the same time there is only one Spiro Agnew. Everyone knows you can spread Spiro Agnew just so far."

"But surely there must be a lot of new speakers coming up to fill the needs of the country," I protested.

"That's just the point. The younger generation which we were counting on to help out can't talk."

"What do you mean they can't talk?"

"The new generation can't verbalize: They've been listening to rock music since they were born and watching television since they were 3, and it's impossible for them to complete a sentence much less deliver a speech. The reason so many of our radical students use four-letter words these days is that they don't know the correct word to use in expressing a thought."

Public Notice

NOTICE TO SUBMIT BIDS TO BECOME COUNTY DEPOSITARY

In accordance with the law of the State of Missouri, relating to County Depositaries, notice is hereby given to all banks and bankers, that for the purpose of selecting a county depositary or depositaries, for all the public funds of Scott County, Missouri, of every kind and description, including, among other funds, the "County Collector's Fund" for the period ending sixty-five days after the time of selecting a new County depositary in May, 1971, all of said funds will be divided into two equal parts. All banks and bankers desiring to become County depositary of all, or either of said part of said funds, may submit sealed proposals therefor up to 12 o'clock noon, Monday, May 3rd, 1971, to the undersigned Clerk of the County Court of Scott County, Missouri, stating the rate of interest on daily balances such bank or bankers offer to pay, also the number of parts for which it desires to bid.

Each of said bids must be accompanied by a certified check for not less than such proportions of 1½% of the county revenue of the preceding year, as the sum of the said parts of said funds bid for, bears to the whole number of said parts as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the bidder, that if his bid should be accepted he will enter into the depositary bond provided for by law.

Bids will be publicly opened at noon on Monday, May 3rd, 1971.

WITNESS my hand and the official seal of the County Court, done at my office in Benton, Missouri this 12th day of April, 1971.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of One and one-half inch hotmix asphaltic pavement on six inch soil cement base constructed to insure surface drainage in accordance with plans & specifications on Alabama Street from Washington to Compress Road, in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. Section 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $2.75 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates have been established by the Industrail Commission of Missouri. Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 5th day of April, 1971. Approved: Taylor Noles Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

Beverly Todd

Under Twenty

By Kurt Lassen

Turning down roles is not usually what actresses do. It is, however, what Beverly Todd does quite often. Last year, for example, she turned down two major motion pictures and a television series. She does it because she has set down definite standards for herself.

"It isn't the size of the role that influences me," she told us, "it's the quality and the content of it. On the television series I would have been able to make out very well, but I've worked too hard and too long to become an actress to do anything but the very best I can do. On a series, things are usually done in such a hurry that you don't get a chance to do your best."

One role Beverly didn't turn down was starring opposite Sidney Poitier in "Brother John." "I took that," she said, "because it was real and it was honest. It was honest in terms of the black experience and, of course, Sidney is absolutely wonderful to work with."

The fact that Beverly turns down roles doesn't mean she isn't kept busy. In less than 12 months, she has completed four films, "Summer Kill," "The Lost Man," also with Sidney Poitier; "Some Kind of Nut," and "They Call Me Mister Tibbs," with Poitier.

"Brother John' was a wonderful experience," Beverly told us. "The set when you're working with Sidney is always so relaxed and easy. He doesn't blow up, he works so calmly and professionally that everyone else on the set just falls into the same mood and it all seems to work so well."

From the time Beverly actively decided to become an actress, and that was when she was in grammar school, she has stuck her guns in choosing what she wanted to do. "It wasn't always easy. It still isn't," she said. "There was a time when I could have worked on the stage, but I worked as an office temporary instead. And, if I had to do it again to keep taking roles I really didn't want, I'd go back to being a secretary and, without bragging, I must say I was a pretty good one."

Beverly began her training at the famed Karamu Theatre in Cleveland. Her work there attracted attention from New York producers and she was invited to fly to New York for an audition for a Broadway before. All the way in I kept thinking the whole thing was impossible. When I got up on the stage to sing, absolutely nothing happened. I couldn't hit a note, couldn't project. Everything was just horrible.

"I knew the people who were listening just sat there wondering why in the world anyone had bothered to ask me in for an audition. I got off the stage, caught my plane back to Cleveland, and naturally, didn't hear another word."

It wasn't too long thereafter that Beverly was again invited to New York where she won a part in an off-Broadway play and supplemented her income as a secretary for an insurance company. "My boss was wonderful," she told us. "When I had to go off for an audition, he'd let me go and I'd work twice as fast to make up for it."

One of Beverly's dreams is to start a school for small children in Harlem. She's a girl who believes strongly in working in and for her community. In short, Beverly is a girl with beliefs and principles. Producers and casting directors have found this out.

If the right roles don't come along ("sometimes the pickings are slim") you may find Beverly working as an office temporary. But the chances of that are also very, very slim.

State Capitalism

By Ralph C. Deans
Editorial Research Reports

Washington — In his classic economic tract, Wealth of Nations (1776), Adam Smith made the observation that a capitalist generally does not, through business, intend to promote the public interest. But Smith's revolutionary concept in the 18th century was that capitalists were led to work for the common good by an "invisible hand"-- the competitive forces of an open market which tend to promote efficiency and lower costs.

While Smith is still revered as the father of political economy, the "perfect competition" he saw between small firms has been superseded by the growth of corporate giantism. Big companies, which control significant portions of the market, have thrown competition out of whack. Their actions necessarily involve the national interest, inviting government control.

This is one current of thought in the gargument that the United States is headed for more government control of the economy. The current level of federal regulation is already a matter of controversy. Some 100 regulatory agencies exist now. President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said in its recent annual report to Congress that much of the railways' current spate of troubles could be traced to over-regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Regulation, the Council said, "appears to have promoted numerous inefficiencies and high freight rates." It recommended substantial deregulation.

Although federal regulation of business spread during the New Deal and in the two world wars, its orgins are much older. With the states unable to curb the abuses of railroads after the Civil War, Congress invoked the commerce clause of the Constitution in the original Interstate Commerce Act of 1877 to establish the Interestate Commerce Commission -- the first regulatory agency.

The creation of the ICC was a significant departure from the hitherto prevailing view of limited government authority in free enterprise — that wrongs in private business might be punished but not prevented. This change in attitude owed much to the reforms urged by the Populists and muchrakers, who were reacting to the excesses of big business in that free-wheeling era of robber barons, profiteering and plunder.

Historians see some evidence that President Franklin Roosevelt's attitude toward regulatory agencies may have changed after his first term of office, from 1933 to 1937, when he created more of them than any other President. During his second term, Roosevelt concentrated on reform of these agencies. Reforms have been attempted by many Presidents but, according to Louis M. Kohlmeier Jr., an expert on regulatory agencies, the history of reform has been "uneven and disappointing." While some economists fear that regulatory agencies may control the entire economy, others believe that they are an alternative to the nationalization of many industries. John Kenneth Galbraith argues that defense, space and atomic energy concerns are already government corporations, except in name, and should be nationalized to remove the fiction that they aren't.

Small companies are making a comeback in many industries — steel is a notable example -- but it is too early to say whether the comeback is strong enough to reintroduce a new element of competition into the economic system and save it from further government-imposed controls. Several forces are pushing in the opposite direction. These include consumers who want protection and pollution foes who want better, if not more, enforcement.

Moreover, the New Left is calling upon business to discard its traditional goal of enlarging profits and turn to serving society. If business does not respond to the demands for pollution control, equal-opportunity hiring and social revelance, Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans warns, "the very possible alternative could be government control, regulation, regimentation, an alteration of our system."

To many observers, the gravest and most immediate danger to free enterprise is the growing possibility that government, in having to rescue failing corporations, will involve itself deeper and deeper until the line between the private and public sector is hopelessly blurred. Thus state capitalism -- or "welfare capitalism" to its detractors -- will become the hybrid offspring of a marriage of socialism and free enterprise.

A dual track meet in which Sikeston and Charleston met at Charleston last Friday afternoon went to the Bluejay crew by a score of 84 to 26. Wigdor and Simmons of Charleston, each accounted for 15 points to tie for high point honors. Paul "Snake" Crain was high point man for Sikeston with 14 points.

Fire of undetermined origin caused damage estimated at $3,000 to house and furniture belonging to Jake Goldstein Wednesday morning. An explosion which carried away all upper floor windows and hurled curtains across the street startled the neighborhood.

Mrs. Mary Lucille Crain will leave for St. Louis Tuesday to spend a week with friends.

The Sikeston Greenhouse shipped several hundred cuttings of improved chrysanthemums to a customer in New York State Tuesday of this week. This is a very busy establishment at this time and a very interesting place to visit.

That's The Law

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Wilma was a buxom beauty who, unfortunately, had more brains in her little finger than she had in her whole head. Aged 34, she had the mentality of a 6-year-old. While thus deficient, however, there was nothing deficient in Wilma's well rounded figure.

She attracted men like a sexual lodestone and on two occasions produced two mentally deficient children. Rating her daughter's productions "X", Wilma's mother petitioned the court for an order directing Wilma to undergo an operation that would thereafter prevent her from having children.

"I'm an old lady," she told the judge, "and I can't take the physical, financial and emotional strain of taking care of Wilma's brood. After all , two generations of imbeciles should be sufficient."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you put an end to the string of imbeciles by granting the order?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the application of Wilma's mother was based solely on social and economic grounds. And, he concluded, in effect, there was no legal authority for directing such an operation of a physically healthy woman, despite the fact that she may be sexually promiscuous and unable to take care of herself and her children.

(Based upon a 1969 Texas Court of Appeals Decision)

The Prayer
from The Upper Room

Go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee. (Mark 16:7)

PRAYER: O God of love, who loves the sinner in spite of his sin and dirt, we cannot hope to be worthy of Thy love. But help us to return Thy love as best we can and show it forth by loving our fellowmen wherever they may be, whatever the language they speak, or the work they do. In Jesus' name we pray. Amen

Book Review

CHICANO
by Richard Vasquez
(Avon W240/$1.25/352pp.)

Chicanos--Mexican-Americans on the move, in search of their identity, their past and their future--perhaps the most neglected ethnic group in a neglectful society. In CHICANO, a ward-winning newspaperman Richard Vasquez turns to the medium of the novel to write of the struggled of his people in the American Southwest.

The novel depicts the heavy burden of prejudice and poverty under which the Chicano has suffered, tracing the story from one family's origins in Mexico at the time of the 1910 Revolution through four generations to the present period in the East Los Angeles barrio.

MIAMI GOLDEN BOY
by Herbert Kastle
(Avon W253/$1.25/416pp.)

Miami Beach, perhaps the gaudiest playground of them all, sets the stage for a novel that has been termed "As explosive as the latest H-bomb!" (by The Tulsa World). MIAMI GOLDEN BOY, by Herbert Kastle, author of THE MOVIE MAKER, makes its paperback debut as an Avon book.

The players in this game of expensive fun and dangerous intrigue include a super-stud out for big money and real love; a girl who is beautiful, rich and the carrier of a secret powerful enough to shake the nation; an iron-willed former President of the United States who still rules the country as well as his glamorous family from a wheelchair; a black singer who gets involved with the wrong white woman; and a Senator next in line for the Presidency and suddenly the target of a lunatic kidnap scheme.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, April 12, the 102nd day of 1971. There are 263 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1961, the Soviet Union became the first nation to put a man in space.

On this date:

In 1606, the Union Jack became the national flag of England.

In 1777, the American statesman, Henry Clay, was born in Hanover County, Virginia.

In 1916, American soldiers under Gen. John J. Pershing were fighting in Mexico against forces led by Pancho Villa.

In 1945, President Franklin D Roosevelt died, and Harry S. Truman was sworn in as the 33rd president.

Ten years ago—President John F. Kennedy pledged that the U.S. armed forces would not intervene in Cuba under any conditions to help bring about the downfall of the Castro government.

Airline Fare Hike Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board gave the scheduled airlines permission today to raise domestic fares as much as 6 per cent early next month.

The board also proposed that within 50 days, if no exceptions are filed, the airlines be permitted coach fare increases up to 9 per cent.

The CAB ruling came at the end of the first stage of a massive fare investigation. Remaining stages, having to do with discount fares and general fare structure, will be decided later.

The immediate increase of 6 per cent cannot be added on top of recent selective increases granted by the board to various airlines in congested markets.

The airlines will be permitted increases only to the extent that prior increases do not reach 6 per cent, the board said.

Where certain recent increases exceed 9 per cent over the fares that were in effect last Oct. 15, the fares must be rolled back not later than May 14 to the 9 per cent level.

Where previous increases exceed 6 per cent but are less than 9 per cent, the airlines may retain such fares in effect.

The CAB decision thus permits a $2.00 increase in the coach fare between Atlanta and Memphis, from $32 to $34, including tax; a $5 increase between detroit and Miami, to $86; and a $1 increase between Indianapolis and Washington, to $45.

On the Boston-New York route, where increases were granted recently, the coach fare will be cut back from $26 to $24.

The board also proposed for the first time to establish load standards and seating standards in the calculation of fares.

The board said the 9 per cent fare increase is based on a finding that the average load is 52.5 per cent of capacity.

The CAB noted that this load factor dropped in actual operations from 57.2 per cent in 1967 to 50 per cent in 1969 and 48 per cent for the year ending last September 30.

"A policy of basing fares on actual load factors can only lead to increasing over capacity, with the traveling public being asked to pay higher fares to compensate the carriers for the cost of operating an increasing number of empty seats," the board said.

"This result is virtually inevitable because schedules constitute the major competitive device of carriers in their efforts to preserve and enhance their participation in the traffic markets which they serve."

State Military Schools Report Enrollment Dip

LEXINGTON, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's three military academies are being hurt by declining enrollments.

Officials at the academies — Wentworth in Lexington, Missouri Military at Mexico, and Kemper Military at Boonville— agree that growth of community junior colleges has been a big factor, along with the economic recession.

ROY HALE

He was born Feb. 18, 1925 in Shioney.

He was a member of the General Baptist church and a veteran of World War II. On Oct. 6, 1946, he married Lorene Wilfong.

Survivors include his wife of Poplar Bluff; six brothers, Lee and Leonard Hale, both of Poplar Bluff; the Rev. Jesse Hale of Wappapello; Floyd Hale of ths state of California; and Donald and Delbert Hale of Wood River, Ill.; and five sisters, Mrs. Pearl Daves of Jersey, Ill., Mrs. Ivy Graham and Louise Hale, both of Wood River, Ill., and Mrs. Freda Williams and Edith Allison, both of the state of California.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Watkins and Sons Funeral Home chapel in Dexter with the Rev. Don Black officiating.

Burial will be in the Puxico cemetery.

MRS. ANNA DAY

ADVANCE— Services for Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Day, 81, Advance, were held Saturday afternoon at Morgan Funeral Home with Richard Smith, officiating.

Burial was in Morgan Memorial Park.

Mrs. Day died Thursday in a St. Louis hospital. She was a member of the Advance Jehovah's Witnesses Church.

She was born Nov. 1, 1889, at Edwardsville, Ill., and married Frank C. Day, Dec. 15, 1913. He died Aug. 11, 1965.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. Ruth Rice, Brookfield, Ill., Mrs. Lois Hayes and Mrs. June Jones, both of Hazelwood, and Mrs. Wilma Holland, Mobile, Ala.; a son, Hubert Day, Advance; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Inez Kirby, Dexter; two brothers, Willard and Walter Bailey, both of Poplar Bluff; a sister, Mrs. Virginia Tofflemire, Lynwood, Calif.; three half sisters, Mrs. Georgia Cooper, Dexter, Mrs. Hazel Leathers, Columbus Ga., and Mrs. Fay Mossmon, Flint, Mich.; eight grandchildren, and nine great-grandchildren.

Elms Hotel to Remain Closed

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo. (AP)--The well-known Elms Hotel, a one-time luxurous health spa that attracted visitors from throughout the United States, will remain closed this summer.

A spokesman for Gotham Hotels, Inc., said in New York Thursday "it has been decided not to open for business this year. The reservations we had booked were very light.

"Based on this," the spokesman continued, "the forecasted operations pointed to a loss if we did open. We are hoping the national economy will improve the next year."

The hotel came into being in 1898.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Reports that moisture was urgently needed in areas of the Southwest where the winter wheat crop is in the ground influenced heavy buying and an advance of 4 5/8 cents a bushel in wheat futures early on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

Corn prices also were higher but soybeans were mixed and oats were lower.

On the opening, wheat was 1¼ to 4 5/8 cents a bushel higher, May 1.63¾; corn was 3/8 to 1¼ higher, May 1.47¾; soybean were ¼ lower to ¼ higher, May 2.90¾, and oats were 1/8 to 3/8 lower, May 70¾ cents.

Nine Injured

David O. Blattle, 24, St. Louis, driver of a 1969 Plymouth, failed to round a curve at a barricade on highway 61 Saturday at 6:20 a.m., one mile south of Hayti, struck the barricade and overturned, the highway patrol reported.

Both were taken to Pemiscot County Memorialhospital in Hayti.

Larry J. Hart, 25, Charleston, received internal injuries, when his 1965 Pontiac was struck by a 1970 Peter built tractor, driven by James E. Smith, 22, Nashville, the patrol said.

Paul Gross, 23, St. Louis, received head injuries Saturday at 6:30 p.m. on highway 34, three miles east of Piedmont.

He lost control of his 1970 Ford, ran across road, struck a dirt embankment and overturned. He was taken to Doctors hospital in Poplar Bluff, the patrol said.

The patrol said a passenger, Reba Gream, 16, Portageville, had leaned over to kiss the driver, resulting in the accident. She received cuts on her back and was treated at Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti.

Two were injured Sunday at 10:15 in Cape Girardeau county on highway 61, one mile south of route KK.

A 1970 Chevrolet station wagon, driven by William A. Vorce, 51, Florissant, passed another vehicle and struck a 1963 Oldsmobile, driven by William Murray III, 26, St. Louis, the highway patrol said.

Vorce and Murray were bruised. Both were treated at Southeast Missouri hospital. An accident Sunday at 11:10 p.m. on highway 61, two miles south of Longtown injured two persons.

A 1970 Ford, driven by William J.Valleroy Jr., 17, Perryville, was forced off the road by an unidentified driver, causing Vallerot to lose control, striking a dirt embankment and overturning, the patrol said.

The driver has a cut over his eye. A passenger, Donald R. Clements, 21, Perryville received a head and leg injury.

Two Arrested After Trying To Pass Check

PUXICO— Two men whose names were withheld, were apprehended shortly after one of them tried to pass a check at Benny's IGA store Saturday at 5 p.m.

The men were taken in custody by the officers and taken to the Stoddard county jail in Bloomfield.

A search of the car disclosed other checks on the seat which were taken from McGowens store on highway 51, April 1, authorities said.

Falcons can attain speeds of 180 miles per hour in a power dive, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.
